THE PAST CRICKET SEASON.

IT is for many reasons unfortunate that Westminster should have only one School match; but at least the year in which that match is won becomes memorable. Many of us, whose feet have often trod the steep and weary way that leads to the heights of Charterhouse (so charming in sunshine, so uncouthly in rain and cold!) will remember the keen disappointment with which last year we found our eleven, which seemed to have good promise of success, hopelessly outclassed and outplayed. Time fortunately brings its revenges, and the stirring match of 1909 has some measure of consolation. The beginning had that sensational touch so dear to the evening papers. Indeed, the match was full of thrills all through, and no one, who was present, is likely to forget the fall of wicket after wicket to Clarke's deadly bowling in the second innings, or the admirable hitting of Wood, which made victory certain at the end.

The record of the season is seven wins against five losses. The best performances were those against Charterhouse, the Sussex Martlets, and Mr. Day's XI; but the Eton Ramblers, the Old Wykehamists and the I Zingari found no difficulty in scoring off our bowling or in getting us out.

It was hardly to be expected in a year which has given so much useful tribute of its rain, that the averages would be high, but Gow's average of 31 is quite good, and the next four also have respectable averages to their credit. Gow made the most runs, and was much the most reliable bat on the side. He set an excellent example in the field, and the value of his captaincy cannot be overestimated. Westminster has not always been fortunate in its captains. Gow showed, noticeably in the Charterhouse match, that he had the right touch. Circuitt improved out of all knowledge. He played a hard, vigorous game and, though at times he showed more confidence than discretion, he was a very valuable member of the team. H. F. Rawson was quite out of form at the beginning of the season and seemed unable to get going, but he played some good innings at the end. He is a stylish left-handed bat and has plenty of cricket in him. We wish him all success as captain next year. Hill began the season with an excellent 73, was the mainstay of the batting in the first innings of the Charterhouse match, and on several other occasions played extremely well. R. R. Rawson ought to be very useful next year: he goes for the ball in the most refreshing style, and more than once came to the rescue of the side with a vigorous innings. H. N. Wood will always have the satisfaction of remembering his innings against Charterhouse. We hope that next year he will treat us to a few more of the same kind. Clarke's average is not flattering, but he made many good shots, and was worth many more runs than he got. Goodall batted stylishly and confidently, but his innings too often came to an untimely end. Hammond showed on occasions that he could bat, but he has not yet fulfilled his early promise. Hobson is a Goliath at the nets, but any David can sling him out at the wickets. However, he is a fine hitter, and, with more confidence, ought to make plenty of runs. E. S. Wood proved the best wicket-keeper, and was quite useful behind the sticks. Gilmour was a late recruit, and should be of use next year both in batting and bowling.

A landlady once recommended her apartments on the ground that her last lodgers kept a carriage and pair, 'and that speaks for itself.' Even so the bowling figures speak for themselves: 58 wickets fell to Clarke, 18 to Rawson, and 17 to Goodall. It is obvious, therefore, that the brunt of the bowling fell on Clarke. His bowling against Charterhouse was first-class, and he is probably the best bowler that the School has produced for some time. None of the other bowlers were very deadly. R. R. Rawson was the most effective, but he was hardly tried till the middle of the season, and only bowled two overs in the first five matches. He has more control of the ball than he had, and would be still more effective if he could bowl a good fast one. Goodall on occasions bowled well, but Circuitt never seemed difficult, and H. N. Wood's variety of pitch failed to baffle the batsmen.

The fielding was very uncertain at the beginning of the season, and at one time catch after catch was dropped, but the standard improved later, and in the Charterhouse match it was excellent. A great deal more pains is taken with fielding than used to be the case, and there is a corresponding improvement.

In the time-honoured match between K.S.S. and T.B.B., the former were successful. Grant's won the House Shield with rather unexpected ease. Rigaud's won the Junior Cup. Of the youngsters, Rudd, Cobbold, Potter, Smith and Kann all show promise which, we hope, they will fulfil in the future, and add a charm by their prowess to those Saturday matches which it is the privilege of every Westminster boy to attend.

HALL EPIGRAMS.

WE are proud of our old customs, and none of them is older or quainter than that which bids us regale our guests year by year with morsels of home-grown wit in the form of epigrams. Moreover, it is a custom to which we are specially attached because, so far as we know, there is nothing like it to be found elsewhere—it is a unique survival from medieval times. But if the form of the observance is ancient, the matter is modern. Like the epilogue of the Play, the annual budget of 'epigrams and verses spoken before the Electors' forms a review of current events, offering to each generation a pithy commentary on its doings and misdoings, its work and play, its freaks and follies—in short, a satirical hotch-potch various enough to satisfy Juvenal himself.

In this year of political excitement most of the epigrams turn, as is natural, on matters of public interest—the Budget, the Suffragists, and so forth—not, however, to the exclusion of our own special affairs. We quote some specimens of either kind.

Strenua inertia.

Strenuus exclamat Dives, 'Cedo, Romule, classem':
Idem est, cum pretium solvere debet, iners.

Strenua inertia.

Why does the town resound with shrieks?
Why, with dishevelled hair,
Do Maenads brawl when Asquith speaks
Or Birrell takes the chair?
Hush, friend! Not Maenads, if you please,
Or any rabble rout,
But ministering angels these,
Taking a Sunday out.

Τὴν παρεούσαν ἔμελλε.

Huc ubi sollempni rursus confluximus hora,
Excipit en! patrio pristina more domus:
Cena eadem struitur, stat non mutata supellex,
Quisque manet qualem vidimus ante lapis.
Sic minime rerum faultrix schola nostra novarum
Noluit antiquas deseruisse vias,
Et colit aeternumque colet quos Attica laude
Extulerat vel quos Musa Latina viros.
Haec studia heroas nobis patriaeque dederunt
Saepius, haec iterum mox iterumque dabunt.
Cur alias artes iam doctrinasque sequemur?
Si sapimus, nobis sat quod habemus, erit.

This was received with enthusiasm, but we venture to hope that it was the style of the poem rather than the sentiment expressed in the last couplet that commended itself to the audience. We are all for a liberal education, but we cannot all be learned in the classics—.

Τὴν παρεούσαν ἔμελλε.(Unus de atriensibus loquitur.)

Whene'er I waits at what they call
Helection Dinner in College 'All,
I sees a lot of learned blokes
A-crackin' Greek and Latin jokes.
Some on 'em laughs, but some, I think,
Conceals their feelin's in a drink:
I fancy, when they stoops to jest,
The Henglish language suits them best.

This year, at least, the dissemblers did not miss much, for nearly all the best pieces were in English; these, for example:

Strenua inertia.

When 'Windell' fain would spend in Spain
The proceeds of his jest,
The Law said 'Ah! you've gone too far,
And so you need a(r)rest.'

Τὴν παρεούσαν ἔμελλε.

'My brethren, never lose an opportunity,' he cried:
The heathen smiled. That night, alas, the missionary died.

Τὴν παρεούσαν ἔμελλε.

Punch, toddy, or gin? such an offer 'twere sin
To refuse; no, I'm not such a nobby:
So I'll take the punch now, and be drinking the gin
While your ladyship's mixing the toddy.

It only remains to say that the epigrams were admirably recited and were greeted with hearty applause.

SCHOOL EPIGRAMS.

THE following were amongst School Epigrams :—

' Out of sight, out of mind.'

Cur classem in Tamesim modo collegere Britannam
Consilium sollers mentibus esse ferunt.
Cura fuit cunctis naves spectare; remittent,
Navibus emissis, poscere navigia.

' Out of sight, not out of mind.'

Search Vincent Square
You'll not find there
Forest or up-land, still
Our runs we owe
As score-sheets show
Chiefly to Wood and Hill.

' Habent sua fata libelli.'

Oft, in school prayers, a row of dusty urchins you observe
Kneeling on books, through lack of proper hassocks in reserve.
If, then, it teach the young idea, and also serve as hassocks,
Oh what a marvel is our 'Gow's Companion to the Classics.'

' Out of sight, out of mind.'

Of aeroplanes 'tis true you'll find,
When out of view they're out of mind;
In fact you'll only know they're there,
By ballast dropping on your hair.

' Habent sua fata libelli.'

Shall Britons train themselves to fight
Invading German hordes?
That bill is not to Britain's likes,
And passes not the Lords.

Once more we have to deplore the vast preponderance of English epigrams. We can only hope that it will sooner or later be realised that to raise a short laugh up-School on Election Tuesday is not the sole object of School epigrams.

Historical Notes.

We print the following extracts from 'Hic et Ubique,' by Sir William Fraser, sent by the late Sir Guillum Scott.

'The first time that Lord Fitzroy Somerset, afterwards Lord Raglan, was in action he was on his relation, the Duke of Wellington's, staff. After being for some time exposed to a heavy fire, observing the battle, the Duke turned to him and said, "Well, Fitzroy, how do you feel?" His answer was "Better than I expected."

'At Inkerman a friend, who was close to him during the whole battle, told me that he could discern no sign of anxiety in Lord Raglan's face, except at one moment, that when the French line reached the top of the slope and became exposed to the Russian fire. General Cathcart and General Strangways, my father's most intimate friends, were killed on that day, the latter by Lord Raglan's side.

'Happening to meet my old and excellent friend, Field-Marshal Sir William Gomm, at the parade of the Guards on the Queen's birthday in 1873, he took me to his house in Spring Gardens, and was good enough to write out for me the following lines written by himself, "On visiting Dryden's schoolboy's seat in Westminster School, and finding his name carved, as schoolboys wont to carve, on the worm-eaten desk in front :

"Lo! where the Bard in boyhood's frolic hour
Hath carved with penknife point a rayless name;
Ere long, to brighten every Muse's bower;
And shine immortal on the rolls of Fame."

Sir William Gomm was a fine type of the cultivated soldier. I asked him on one occasion what was the happiest moment of his life: I felt sure that he had made up his mind. He replied at once "Yes; when I was at Westminster I had to translate some lines of 'Virgil.' This was my translation :

'Straight at the word, divine Æneas rose:
And thus renewed the tale of Ilion's woes.'

The Head Master said 'Very good; better than Dryden.' That was the happiest moment of my life."

'Sir William Gomm was Commander-in-Chief in India; Colonel of the Second Regiment of Guards; and Constable of the Tower of London.'

School Notes.

To many Westminsters past and present the sudden death of Sir Guillum Scott came as a grievous shock. Though not himself a Westminster he had close relations with us through his brother-in-law, the late Sir Frederick Hunt, and the sons whom he sent to the School. No one was more devoted to Westminster, no one a more constant attendant at the Play and at our games. His zeal was catching, and it was impossible to be with him without a raising of the spirit. He kept all and more than all the fire of youth and seemed to have in him many more years of active life. Of those who saw and shared his enthusiasm at the end of the Charterhouse match none could have foreseen that in so brief a time the warm heart would cease to beat and the cheery voice be still for ever.

There are fifty new boys this term.

The new King's Scholars were admitted Up-School on Thursday, September 23, by the Rev. Canon Duckworth, who gave a suitable address at the close of the proceedings.

We welcome Mr. A. T. Willett, O.W., as a new master this term.

Mr. Cedric Boulton has very kindly presented the School with a beautiful cup for an Inter-House Team Swimming Race.

During the holidays the Scott Library has been entirely repainted.

The Officers' Training Corps sent a half-Company down to the O.T.C. Camp at Aldershot. An account appears elsewhere.

Mr. Wootton is to give a series of lectures on Infantry Training, &c.

Some members of the Natural History Society attended a Fungus Foray conducted by Mr. J. F. Rayner.

A portion of the Gymnasium has been given up to the Dean for the new Museum. This necessitates the making of a new entrance and the removal of the armoury from its old position.

THE FIELDS.

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL v. M.C.C. & G.

THIS match was played Up-Fields on Saturday, July 17. The School won the toss and went in first on an easy wicket. Runs came steadily, both Goodall and Rawson playing well, and it was not until the score stood at 56 that Goodall was rather luckily caught by Leigh-Ibbs, who fumbled the ball, but managed to hold it at the third attempt. Hill did not score, but after Rawson had left at 69 a long stand ensued between Gow and Circuit, both batsmen scoring at a great pace. R. R. Rawson and Clarke also hit hard, but the innings soon afterwards closed for 293.

The M.C.C. went in at a quarter to four, and when the tea interval was reached had lost two wickets for 50 runs. Kennard and Lauder both played sound cricket, and Kennard was unlucky to be caught off a full-pitch. The other batsmen did not offer much resistance, and the match was over shortly after six o'clock, the School winning by 172 runs. The School fielding for the most part was very poor, Clarke especially missing the simplest of catches from Brown. Wood and Rawson bowled very well, though the former was very unlucky, having no less than five catches missed off his bowling.

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL v. OLD WESTMINSTERS.

THIS match was played Up-Fields on Saturday, July 24, and resulted, after a well-contested game, in a defeat for the School by 52 runs. The O.W.W. won the toss and opened with Bompas and Rawlings to the bowling of Goodall and Clarke. The pitch was very soft and easy and the School bowlers could make no impression on the two batsmen, who were not parted until 55 was on the board. Rawlings played a beautiful innings of 71, and Turner put together 37 in an hour and a half, but no one else except Powers and Rawson were quite at home with the bowling, and the innings was declared closed at 235 for eight wickets, leaving the School two and a half hours in which to get the runs.

Goodall and Rawson as usual opened the School innings, but Goodall left with the score at 4, and Rawson at 7. Five wickets were down for 72, and the match looked as good as over, but Gow and Wood and later on Wood and Clarke made most plucky stands and nearly succeeded in saving the game; indeed, when the latter pair were together it almost looked as if the School might yet prove victorious. But the last three wickets fell very quickly and the O.W.W. won as stated. Wood, Gow, and Clarke all batted nicely for the School, but Wood was lucky in being missed four times. Powers bowled exceedingly well for O.W.W.

K.S.S. v. T.B.B.

This match was played Up-Fields on Monday, July 26. It was the turn of the T.B.B. to bat first, and Goodall and H. Rawson opened the innings to the bowling of Wood and Lutyens. Rawson could not settle down and was twice missed before he was well run out. Goodall was also run out, Rawson calling for an impossible run, and two wickets were down for 18. A startling collapse now ensued and six wickets were down for 79, and ultimately the whole side was dismissed for 93. Wood at first could not get a length, but coming on again bowled well, while Lutyen's leg-breaks met with surprising success.

K.S.S. started on their task after lunch. The first three wickets fell for 10 runs, but Gow and Hammond raised the score to 50, both batsmen playing excellently. Gow left at 68, but E. Wood and Covington made a fine stand and carried the score to 98 before E. Wood was bowled. Covington played very finely, driving with great power. The result of the match was very creditable to K.S.S. who were on paper much the weaker side.

FINAL HOUSE MATCH—GRANT'S v. RIGAUD'S.

This match resulted in a win for Grant's by an innings and 22 runs. Rigaud's batted first and sent in Goodall and Lamb to open their innings. The former made some excellent shots and was unlucky in being run out. Clarke came in, but after making one or two good hits was well caught at square leg. Slubicki and Cobbold did not stay long, and Lamb was soon after bowled by H. Rawson. In his next over the same bowler clean bowled four men with four successive balls. The side were thus out for 92. On Grant's going in H. and W. Rawson put on 48 for the first wicket, the former doing most of the scoring. After this partnership was dissolved, Marriot, Gilmour, Smith, and Graham all made runs, but the chief honours fell to H. Rawson, who played a fine innings of 118. Going in 152 runs in arrears, Rigaud's did better than in their first attempt. Clarke played an invaluable innings for his side, but of the others only Lamb and Cobbold reached double figures. The score finally reached 135, so that Grant's won as stated.

O.T.C. CAMP.

THIS year there were three O.T.C. Camps in England: one at Aldershot, for Schools in the London District and Eastern Command, another on Salisbury Plain for Schools in the Southern Command, and a third near Stafford, for Schools in the Northern and Western Commands.

In consequence of the formation of many new contingents all these Camps were very large, that at Aldershot consisting of nearly 3,200 Cadets.

The School Contingent numbered forty-one. We left for Aldershot on Tuesday, July 27. The camping ground was very pleasantly placed near the Balloon Factory on Farnborough Common, but on the first day it appeared very dreary as we marched in in the pouring rain. As it was impossible to draw bedding in such weather, we slept on the hard boards.

Each day réveill  sounded at 5.30, and there was generally a Battalion Parade at 6.30. Our appetites were very good when we returned to breakfast at a quarter to eight.

Then there was a parade at 9.30, followed by three hours' work in the field. After dinner we paraded again at 2.30.

On the second day the whole Brigade marched to the Long Valley to see the mobilisation at war strength of Maj.-Gen. Grierson's Division. Printed papers were provided for the Cadets, who were able to get a good idea of the size and composition of the Division.

The afternoon's work was quite easy.

On the third day (Thursday) the after-breakfast parade was devoted to practising the attack over rough country near Edmoor Hill.

In the afternoon we were out on Laffan's Plain rehearsing the review of the Brigade. In the evening at 8.15 we turned out again for our fourth parade that day. Two and a half battalions attacked the position held by the remainder of the Brigade. We were on the attacking side and formed part of the force detailed to deliver a holding attack across Laffan's Plain on to the canal west of Edmoor Bridge. We had some exciting experiences, but did not get quite as much amusement as did the force which attacked the enemy's flank. Officers on the attacking side were carefully saluted by the defenders and supplied with all possible information. Considerable confusion existed amongst the defending force, and our attacks met with only a feeble resistance, as the enemy's reserves were not called up.

We got home late, and after supper we were glad to get to bed. There was no early parade next morning, and the work after breakfast was quite light. A little company drill was done, and then the working of an 18-pounder quick-firing gun was explained to the Cadets. The Officers had an opportunity of learning how shells are aimed at targets which are invisible from the battery.

The afternoon was occupied with the review of the Brigade on Laffan's Plain by Lt.-Gen. Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, commanding at Aldershot. The early part of the review was carried out in pouring rain, but later on the sun shone brightly and our clothes soon dried. The Corps did very well, and maintained its reputation for steady drill.

Saturday morning was devoted to outpost work in the Long Valley; and in the afternoon the Brigade was inspected on Cove Plateau by Maj.-Gen. Grierson. The usual reception of visitors and the camp sports followed.

On Sunday morning there was Church Parade and afterwards we were free for the rest of the day. Monday was occupied with a Brigade Field Day in the Long Valley. On Tuesday we had a Field Day on the Fox Hills.

The School Contingent did good work on all occasions. The lines were always excellent, and the behaviour of the contingent on parade and in the field was specially praised by the commander of our battalion. In every way the contingent compared very favourably with other contingents in Camp.

There is one point which we must all regret. A half company is not a creditable contingent from Westminster. If we could take a whole company (say, eighty to one hundred strong) we should get much more interesting work, and our position in camp would be more pleasant. Other schools of our standing send two companies.

Camp begins next year on July 28. It is hoped that every Cadet and, indeed, every member of the School will do his best to make next year's contingent a credit to the School in numbers as well as in efficiency.

House Notes.

K.SS.—We offer our heartiest congratulations to G. G. Williams, J. C. Gow and J. L. Benvenisti on their election to Christ Church, to G. L. Troutbeck and C. K. Covington on their Christ Church Exhibitions, to R. M. Barrington-Ward on his Triplett exhibition, and to J. R. Wade and C. K. Covington on their Triplett gratuities. They carry with them our best wishes, as also do E. S. Wood, C. G. Usher, C. L. G. Powell, G. Sumpter and M. K. Jardine, who left us last term. Meanwhile we welcome back E. A. Meyer after a term's absence. We wound up last term in irresistible style by winning the Swimming Cup, retaining the Fives cup and gaining a handsome victory in the Foun-Boy match. In connection with the latter we must congratulate W. F. Lutyens on his Pink-and-Whites and House colours, G. L. Troutbeck and C. K. Covington on Pink-and-Whites, G. B. F. Rudd on Third XI.'s and House Colours, and J. R. Wade and C. G. Usher on College Caps. Nor must we forget that E. S. Wood was given his Pinks after the M.C.C. and G. match. In conclusion our best congratulations are due to Mr. A. G. R. Henderson on securing a high place in the recent Civil Service Examination.

ASHBURNHAM.—Our first duty is to congratulate three Ashburnham O.W.W., W. B. Harris on gaining an exhibition at Pembroke, G. E. A. Whitworth, a Senior Optime, and E. F. C. Mosse, a 1st in Greats. The House is feeling the absence of D. M. Low and C. M. Goodall from the Upper, and of Meyer and Johnston-Watson from the Middle. Our new monitors are Jerrold and Smith, while Tyson and Hake have come into the Upper. There are twelve new boys. We must congratulate C. M. Goodall and E. J. Tyson on gaining their Pink-and-Whites at the end of the last term, and Formilli on his Thirds. Finally, we must congratulate ourselves on being second in the House Singing Competition, which was more than we expected. The Ashburnham Witan is, we hope, to be revived this term. Our hopes for juniors seem good so far as can be seen.

GRANT'S.—We regret to have to chronicle the departure of Fanner, Sergeant, Sturgess, R. Yolland, E. Yolland, and Mason, all of whom left us last term; they have our best wishes for their success in the future. Cargill and Sedgwick also left us for College. Eight new boys joined us this term; our numbers therefore remain the same. Our very heartiest congratulations are due to the House on winning the Cricket Shield by two decisive victories. Our congratulations are also due to Marriott on his Pink-and-Whites, Gilmour on his Thirds, and Graham, W. Rawson, and Smith on their House Colours. We have every hope of a prosperous year, our Junior team should be quite equal to retaining the Cup, and the House elevens for the Football and Cricket Shields remain practically the same.

The Fives-ties of last term are being redrawn and Yard-ties are being started. The competition for the Racquet Cup has reached the semi-final round.

H.BB.—On returning after the holidays we miss several familiar faces, including four of our old monitors, Bonner, Circuit, Thoresby-Jones and Hill, and many others whose places will be difficult to fill. We wish them every success in the future.

Congratulations are due to Mr. H. Williamson, O.W., on gaining a scholarship at Charing Cross Hospital, and to Mr. H. G. Hill on winning the Brancaster Golf Cup. We must also not forget to congratulate Mellor on getting his cricket Thirds, and Wilkinson on winning both the Senior Swimming Races, and also our House Four on making such a good fight in the final, being beaten only by a touch. The new monitors are Doherty and Mellor.

RIGAUD'S.—On our return from our enjoyable though wet holidays we look round and miss many familiar faces, especially those of Lamb, Cowie, and May: with the last named our best wishes go to Ceylon. Our two new monitors are Goodall and Cooke; we wish the latter good luck in Matriculation. There are seven new boys this term, so that our numbers are now forty-six. We must congratulate Dickenson on being successful in the Challenge, and wish him all success in the future. Although we were badly defeated by Grant's in Seniors final, yet we were recompensed by our Juniors winning the Cup, for which they are deserving of great praise. Congratulations are due to Slubicki on his Third XI. colours, to Cobbold, Cooke, and Harvey on their House Colours, and to Clarke on heading the bowling averages and on having captured fifty wickets. We must also congratulate Mr. R. N. R. Blaker on the birth of a son, but our joy is tempered with deep sorrow at the news of the death of Mr. Richard Berens. We are pleased to see that Mr. A. T. Willett (O.R.) has returned as a master: his assistance in the corps has promoted great patriotism among Rigaudites. Lastly, we congratulate Cozens-Brooke on winning Mr. Wootton's swagger-cane for the best boy in camp.

Old Westminster.

At Oxford Mr. E. F. C. Mosse and Mr. G. R. Y. Radcliffe are placed in the First Class in the Final Classical School. In the School of Modern History Mr. S. McKenna and Mr. H. I. P. Hallett are in the Second Class.

Mr. A. G. R. Henderson, Mr. O. C. Chapman, and Mr. E. F. C. Mosse are among the successful candidates for the Home, Indian, and Colonial services.

Mr. O. H. Walters has passed into the Indian Woods and Forests Service.

Mr. A. S. Gaye has been appointed an Examiner in the Board of Education.

Captain J. B. Wells, D.S.O., has passed into the Staff College.

Birth.

ON September 25, the wife of Richard Norman Rowsell Blaker, of a son.

Marriages.

BEASLEY—ATHERTON.—On August 14, Horace Owen Compton Beasley to Evelyn Augusta, only daughter of W. Upton Atherton.

FOX—SCOTT.—On August 4, William Francis Fox to Rhoda Guillum, daughter of the late Sir A. Guillum Scott.

STAMP—RUNDLE.—On September 30, William Arthur Edmund Stamp to Hettie Honor Fell, elder daughter of Henry Leslie Rundle, of Holyshute, Honiton.

Obituary.

WE record with much regret the death of HAROLD ROBERT LONSDALE, who was admitted as a Q.S. in 1895, and elected to Cambridge in 1899. On obtaining a Lady Key Scholarship he migrated from Trinity to Jesus College. In 1904 he was ordained to a curacy at York, and last year he went as a missionary to India. A notice in The Guardian says that in India he was 'undaunted by discouragements, never elated by any success (and his success in mastering languages was considerable), but always steadfast, glad, and true until the end of his task came.' He died of dysentery on September 8.

The death of THOMAS WATERS removes one who was in the last Election made to Life Studentships at Christ Church, the two with him being the late Henry Lewis Thompson and the late Edward W. Whitaker. Mr. Waters graduated B.A. in 1862, was twelve years vicar of Maiden Bradley, thirteen years vicar of Thornbury, and for some twenty years from 1885 held the Christ Church living of Staverton.
