VALE.

THE present year, which it is now our rather melancholy duty to review, may be said to have achieved the average and no more, as far as tangible results go. Our successes in the field of scholarship have been counterbalanced by our reverses in the field of sport. Yet tangible results are no real standards for right judgment, and to review the past is always an unprofitable way of bettering the future. Suffice it to say, then, that this year has seen the beginnings of many new developments, which with time and enthusiasm, may grow to achievements as glorious as any of old time. To look for harvest in seed-time is a futile task.

Westminster has of late been much accused of lack of enthusiasm. If we can do so without discouragement, let us remember that we cannot all be enthusiasts, even as we cannot all be geniuses. But we can all try. Perhaps it may never be granted to more than one tenth of the School to achieve that perseverance and energy of which we stand in need, but there is no reason why we should not, every one of us, strive to reach some degree of those virtues. Don't stop and talk about it, don't start off in a hurry and then drop out, just keep on trying for the good of the School, and even if you can't do much yourself, never discourage the others. It may be a modest ideal, but reviewed in its proper proportions, it is truly a great one.

The thought of proportion brings us to another point. It is, perhaps, too soon as yet to see any of the issues of the war in a true perspective, but certain things are emerging from the confusion into which it has thrown all our ideas. The past six years have brought about many changes and strange things at Westminster, but the only ones that seem to be permanent are those that have come about in our outlook on our school life and institutions. We have set many new values on things, not on the things that really matter, but on the things that seem to matter, and it behoves us not to shrink from applying these new ideas to their uttermost, for such a course must in the end lead to right.

We must learn, for instance, not to place too much weight on our own importance. We are important, of course, but nothing could be better for us than to forget it. We must not regard our own little activities, our Debating Societies and our house-matches, as earth-shaking and permanent institutions, they are there for our amusement and instruction, not to strike awe into an admiring world, or into anybody, for that matter. We must not take ourselves too seriously, if we hold any small authority, for there are enough things to be taken seriously in the world at present without that.

The outward covering of the tradition changes, but the spirit remains the same cheerful, aspiring spirit it has always been, and if we see to it that that spirit, "Do your best, and do it without unnecessary noise," prevails in all our actions, we need have no fear of the future and may confidently repeat the old wish for the School's everlasting prosperity:

WESTMINSTER v. WELLINGTON.

(Lost.)

Played at Vincent Square on Saturday, June 5 :—

G. J. Bryan, the left-hander, and P. N. Durlacher opened the innings for Wellington, who had won the toss. Both batsmen have a very free style and Bryan especially got some wonderful drives and square cuts. They made a very formidable stand and reached 74 before Durlacher was bowled by Munt. G. S. de Brett then stayed in for a short time and was bowled after a lucky innings with the score at 96. J. D. G. Clayton was lbw to Taylor shortly afterwards. Bryan and R. A. K. Sangster proceeded to put on 166 runs without the loss of another wicket. Bryan played magnificently throughout his innings and hit two 6's. The Westminster bowling lacked sting, though the fielding was good. Westminster made a bad start and Clare and Percival were both out for 21. Taylor and Berryman then made a short stand until Berryman was bowled by Lees. Gorman joined Taylor and together they managed to stop the rot. Both played well and things were beginning to look much better when Taylor was bowled, after a good 52, with the score at 147. Last and Lowe both followed soon afterwards. At 177 Gorman was lbw to Hamilton Wicks with 62 runs to his credit. The rest of the wickets fell in quick succession, and Westminster was all out for 208. The batting was disappointing as the Wellington bowling was poor. Their ground fielding was distinctly good though several catches were dropped.

WESTMINSTER COLTS v. HAILEYBURY COLTS

Played at Vincent Square on June 29:—

This is a new fixture which produced an extremely exciting game. Westminster declared at 168. R. L. Meyer was bowled by an extremely good ball from Hartley with the score at 1. Hudson and Hamilton then put on 90 for the 2nd wicket, after which five wickets were down for 159 and only about ten minutes to go. Three wickets fell with the score at 166 and with the two last men in it was decided to play the game out. After three maiden overs and one unfortunate miss in the slips Haileybury managed to get the runs. With the exception of Lowe,

Taylor, Blair and Thomas, the Westminster batting was disappointing.

J. G. RANALOW.

By the death of Mr. J. G. Ranalow, which took place on May 18, the School loses its oldest master and Old Westminsters a very old friend. For no fewer than forty-two years Mr. Ranalow had been director of music at Westminster and yet when he retired at the end of last year there seemed every reason to hope that he had still a good span of life before him and that his debonair figure and the kind geniality of his presence would still often visit the scenes where he had spent so many years of devoted service and which he loved so well.

Born at Limerick in 1844, he settled in London in February, 1877, and came to Westminster as music master in the same year, in Dr. Scott's time, so that he served under four Head Masters.

A fine musician himself and the possessor of a beautiful voice, which, like himself, retained much of its youthful quality to the last, he was a most painstaking teacher and succeeded in inspiring in his pupils much of his own enthusiasm for his art. But perhaps he was seen at his best on state occasions, such as Commemoration and the annual Concert, where every performer, knowing the infinite pains that Mr. Ranalow took himself, was anxious to do his best, not only to grace the occasion, but also to please the conductor.

A man greatly beloved, he will be greatly missed by his many friends; enemies he had none.

WATER.

WE have now settled down in our new quarters at the London Rowing Club, whose members we must thank for their kindness. Though our two Fours have been unsuccessful in losing their races, yet as a whole Water has made great progress this last year. A more general interest is taken in our doings down at Putney and we are fortunate in having two masters to coach our crews. It was decided this year not to enter for the Public Schools' Cup, as the race was not being rowed at Henley, nor were any of our old rivals entered for the race. Winchester, the holders of the Cup, resigned it. However, several fixtures were arranged, against Winchester and St. Paul's, and against Tonbridge. The first race, a triple one, was rowed on June 19, from the 'Doves,' Hammersmith, past Thornycroft's works.

Our Four got away well and led by half a length for the first minute and a half, but were gradually overhauled and beaten, St. Paul's being the victors by 2 lengths from Winchester, who, in turn, led Westminster by 3 lengths. In the race against Tonbridge on the following Saturday, the first Four again led at the start, but Tonbridge proved a stronger crew and won by 4 lengths. The second Four, however, in their race were only beaten by $3\frac{1}{2}$ lengths, and rowed well considering that they had only been together one week. On July 1 the second Four met St. Paul's, and though they made a better start than their opponents, were beaten by $2\frac{1}{2}$ lengths. In this race the second Four recovered a length towards the end of the course, by two or three fine spurts, and completely rowed themselves out.

The crews were as follows:—

1st Four.—R. C. Storrs (bow), A. F. Zanardi Landi (2), W. P. Gibson (3), J. J. B. Shaw (stroke), G. A. B. Shaw (cox).

2nd Four.—R. L. Bennett (bow), C. Mellor (2), J. B. Evans (3), D. F. Knight (stroke), W. T. Lord (cox).

During the term the first Four have made considerable progress, but are still very unfinished. At present they paddle well, but do not keep their form when racing. Their main faults are a slow recovery, which makes them hurry over the stretcher, and therefore unsteady, and a weak finish due to not holding the knees down firmly.

They have a good beginning, and are quite well together.

R. C. Storrs (bow) has much improved since he came into the boat. He still rows deep, and does not yet row the stroke home in one piece straight from the stretcher. He has gained much more length.

A. F. Zanardi Landi (2) is a very rough but hard-working oar. He does not really use his legs, when racing, but relies on his arms and rows deep. He has a slow recovery and consequently has to hurry over the last part of his swing forward.

W. P. Gibson (3) rowed well against Tonbridge, but in the first race washed out badly towards the finish of the course. His recovery is slow, but he is learning to hold the legs down at the finish.

J. J. B. Shaw (stroke) is long and very quick into the water. He is apt to hurry his crew when rowing a fast stroke, but drives them hard in a race. He must remember that a slow stroke held well out to the finish is more effective than a faster one which is short in the water.

G. A. B. Shaw (cox) has mastered the difficulties of steering on the tideway quite well.

The Second Four have unfortunately not been able to row together continuously, but with more practice would have proved a better crew. R. L. Bennett (bow) works hard and keeps good length. He tends to waste his effort by not keeping the blade properly covered. He has improved considerably during practice.

C. Mellor (2) has good driving qualities, but he is slow and uncertain with his hands, and does not finish out the stroke.

J. B. Evans (3) never settled down in the boat. He puts in some hard work and uses his legs. He must think more of his swing and his wrist work.

D. F. Knight (stroke) raced with great luck. He kept his crew going and marked the rhythm well. He should do well with more experience.

To turn to other matters, the House fours will be rowed off during the coming fortnight, and for the first time the crews will row in clinker fours, and not as previously, in heavy tub fours. There are now both senior and junior sculling races, as a Cup has been given for junior sculling. If boats can be procured, these races will be rowed as soon as possible after the House Fours. Another important piece of news is that the School were presented with a new clinker-built Four by the Elizabethan Club, as well as with new sets of oars.

Last but not least, it is to be hoped that Water will so prosper that in the near future we may once again put an eight on the river as in the best days of Westminster rowing.

House Notes.

K.SS.—We must congratulate Hame, Taylor and Last on their Cricket Pinks, and Storrs on his for Water, also Bennett on his seat in the Second Four. In matters military, our good wishes go to Last on becoming a Sergeant, and to Willoughby on shooting for the School. The efforts of College at Bisley unfortunately cast a gloom on all concerned, including the markers. For Juniors, too, we have not much hope, as we can hardly raise an eleven, even when the Fleet is called to the assistance of the land-forces. Finally we see with pleasure the record percentage of King's Scholars going to Camp.

K.GG.—It is our first and foremost duty to congratulate D. J. Fevez on his Cricket Pinks, J. R. Peacock on his Shooting Pinks, and W. N. McBride and R. W. Hartley on their Cricket House Colours. S. F. P. Jacomb-Hood was a member of the School Swimming team at the Bath Club, and G. P. Stevens also shot at Bisley for the Ashburton Shield. In the O.T.C., D. S. F. Vernon and G. P. Stevens have been promoted to lance-corporals.

As we go to press, it is impossible to prophesy the first round of Seniors, as we are still engaged in a very close match with Ashburnham. Our Junior team succeeded in beating King's Scholars by over 200 runs, and we have every hope of success.

Yard Ties and the Smythe Wooden Racquets Cup are being keenly contested; and, last but not least, we must congratulate J. S. Somers-Cocks on winning the School Pianoforte prize.

A.HH.—First congratulations to H. R. Munt on his Cricket Pinks and to his brother on playing in Colts; Seniors still lag and in Juniors we are a bye.

The shooting cup has gone the way of all flesh, but we can congratulate Teed and Brodie on shooting for the School; likewise Dams and Hickmore on winning music prizes, though our great effort in producing two House quartets fell rather flat.

All cheer to Zanardi Landi on his water pinks. Lastly, our best wishes to Binyon, King and Edwards who are elected to College and congratulations to Chapman and others, who are not.

H.BB.—We have but little news to record this term; in fact, we cannot remember an occasion when there has been any to record in the second half of term.

In the first place we congratulate our shooting

IV on bringing back the Cup to the Upper, and F. T. Hobday and R. D. Knight on shooting for the school. We have unfortunately lost the singing Cup, but in Seniors and Juniors we appear to have good chances of success. H. G. G. Payne must be congratulated on winning the Phillimore Essay prize, and the following on rowing colours: J. J. B. Shaw, W. P. Gibson, G. A. B. Shaw on Pinks; and D. F. Knight, J. B. H. Evans and C. F. K. Mellor on Pink and Whites. Finally we congratulate our two team representatives, Lowe and Clare, on well-deserved Cricket Pinks.

Old Westminster.

At Oxford Mr. Clement Webb, Fellow of Magdalen, has been elected to the new chair of the Professorship of the Philosophy of Religion.

Captain J. T. Johnston-Watson, who was long a prisoner in Germany, has been called to the Bar at the Middle Temple.

Messrs. L. E. N. Ryan, F. Ranalow, A. C. Boulton, E. H. Waterfield, and Capt. W. I. Lang have become life-subscribers to the ELIZABETHAN.

Marriage.

PLATT—RUTHERFORD.—On June 3, Edward Platt to Elspeth, youngest daughter of the late William Gunion Rutherford, Head Master of Westminster.

Correspondence.

We have received the following, which we think will be of interest to O.W.W., from a correspondent in India.

10TH (D.C.O.) LANCERS,
MULTAN, PUNJAB.

To the Editor of 'The Elizabethan.'

DEAR SIR,—Will you please have my 'Eliza' sent to me at the above address, as since January I have ceased to be a 'Gentleman Cadet,' and now hold the little more exalted rank of 'Second Loot.'

One meets very few O.W.W. out here. Manlove and Ekin, both 58th Rifles, are in this Station, and Stuart-Howes, a 'political,' is up at Peshawar; Ker is with the 34th Sikhs (Pioneers) still, and Vedder, who did those long 12½ months with me at Wellington, is with the 26th Punjabis.

Of O.W.W. out here my knowledge now ends! It's a great pity more don't choose the life, but as I see Deb. Soc. has declared in favour of the Corps being washed out, there isn't much encouragement for any one bent that way! Best love to the old School.

Yours,
A. W. F. HOBSON.

Our Contemporaries.

We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the following:—
