'SUT'S.'

THE departure of Miss Sutcliff from her well-known shop in Great College Street and the approaching demolition of the shop itself will be deeply regretted by all Westminsters, whether they have been extensive patrons of the lady or not; and there are very few, if any, who have not at some time or other availed themselves of the refreshment so readily afforded by her. Her departure will be regretted, first, by the Westminster antiquarian, who sees in the closing of 'Sut's' the severance of another link with the past, to whom the very age of the shop lends a charm; moreover, he is not free from a misgiving that the photographs of Westminsters of past generations, in costumes which to the lay mind appear only quaint, will no longer be open to the public gaze.

But the closing of this venerable shop will awaken pangs of keener regret in the many Westminsters who, mostly in their tender years, have been accustomed to find there a place to idle away an afternoon when adverse weather has freed them from the laws of station, or who on half-holidays have spent a spare half-hour in supplementing the plain fare of Hall with dainties only procurable from Miss Sutcliff's store. Long will remain the memory of those afternoons, when at the small cost of a penny bun they could buy a whole afternoon's amusement in sitting and fathoming the wit of the halfpenny comic paper, which was never missed from the table; long will they remember the impatient crowd, whereof they formed not the least impatient part, which daily besieged the shop in the 'second break'; long will they remember Miss Sutcliff herself, how she poured out in no feeble terms the vials of her wrath on those who seemed to her, by curtailing her hours, to wish to destroy her custom altogether; or how she would inveigh against those of the Abbey authorities with whose doctrines she did not agree; or how, again, on one memorable occasion, when her shop was besieged by an importunate rabble, she sallied out, armed with the life-preserver she always kept at hand, and, with a courage not unworthy of the Amazons of old, scattered the mob in all directions. And many another memory will abide with those who now regret Miss Sutcliff's departure from Westminster.

And let no one in the first bitterness of his own regrets forget how far more severe a wrench it must be to Miss Sutcliff herself to leave the house in which she was born and brought up, and in which she has lived all her life. Is it surprising that the shock of going to entirely new surroundings has proved too much for her? If, as seems not unlikely, she goes to a house in Vincent Square, she will still be able to keep in touch with the Abbey, for which she has such a jealous regard, and with the School with which her whole life has been bound up. The closing of her shop leaves a blank, in the life both of herself and of the School, which it will take long to fill up.

DR. BRADLEY.

WHEN at the beginning of last Term the late Dean came up School to bid us good-bye many of us must have felt that it was a last farewell, that his venerable and beloved figure would be seen no more amongst us. There are some at Westminster who had known him for many years, some who had but seen him for a few weeks, but none, boy or adult, can fail to have been touched by the words in which he expressed his affection for the School and the sorrow with which he parted from us.

For twenty-one years Dr. Bradley was Chairman of our Governing Body. It was a place well fitted for the later years of one who had been the greatest schoolmaster of his time, and very well did Dr. Bradley fill it. If in his last years, in the physical frailty of advanced life, he lost some little of the firmness of purpose which marked his prime, he was still able to serve us as loyally and as faithfully as he had from the beginning of his rule. If at times he was needlessly anxious on this matter or that, yet he had none of the fretfulness which sometimes accompanies old age, but rather the noble contentedness of an unselfish life, of a summer well spent and an autumn that could still find a manly enjoyment in labour. We mourn indeed the friend and the benefactor, but we rejoice that he whom we have laid in his beloved Abbey was full of days and of honour. We shall not soon forget his visits to us, his hearty enjoyment in our Plays, above all the beautiful voice, which gave an added dignity to the services of our Church.

To the last Dr. Bradley kept his interest in the ways of boys, in the life of a school, in the intellectual interests of its scholars. He was ever ready to remind us of the great men whose infant footsteps had trodden our Yard and our Cloisters, of the history which Westminster inherits, of our duty to mould our future by the noblest chapters of our past. He had himself been the Headmaster of a new School which will always be associated with his own name and with that of the honoured Westminster whom he succeeded, but he was none the less aware what a treasure we possess in the memories of St. Peter's College and its Collegiate Church.

Of many instances of our Dean's kindness we will choose one of the least. Some four or five years ago two boys found their way on to the roof of the Cloisters. While they were there the ladder by which they had climbed was taken away. They had no return but through the Deanery window. On this they rapped timorously, expecting to be treated as trespassers. The Dean himself took them in, and was delighted to show them the hospitality which they had not deserved. The boys both became soldiers, and, alas! neither survives to join with us in our mourning.

'Mixta senum ac iuvenum densentur funera.'

The word of the Press is not always truth, but here at least it was right in saying that the late Dean had innumerable friends, and, in spite of his great qualities, not a single enemy.

WESTMINSTER PLAY, 1902.

[Though we quite agree that it is best that no translation of the Prologue and Epilogue should appear in the Play Number of the ELIZABETHAN, yet, as last term's Prologue, to use the very words of the author of this translation, 'had to deal with the topics of a longer and more important period than usual,' we think it not amiss to insert a translation, even though it be rather late.]

PHORMIO.

TRANSLATION OF THE PROLOGUE.

THREE years have sped—again our buskined hand
 Make bold, kind friends, to take their task in hand,
 To tread th' old boards, and give to gods and pit
 Their best presentment of Terentian wit.
 If there be some who hold that we were wrong
 To rest in silence for a space so long,
 Let them but think meanwhile how many a blow
 Has England's Royal house been doomed to know.
 And how should we, a Royal school, forbear
 The common sorrow of the realm to share?
 But the great loss that touched the hearts of all
 Scarce in these hasty lines I dare recall.
 Who can forget the night when far and wide
 Through London's streets the news was hoarsely cried?
 When to their doors the grievous message drew
 Listeners, dismayed, and loth to deem it true;
 Loth to believe that She, outworn at last
 By cares and age, from this world's life had passed;
 She who so long through all her land had been
 No less the well-loved mother than the Queen;
 Whose steadfast mind, untiring, wise, and brave,
 Guidance at home, abroad example gave.
 Nor was it granted that a toll so great
 Alone should stay the hard demands of Fate.
 How soon before had Coburg mourned her chief!
 Th' imperial daughter's death renewed our grief.
 Meantime the sombre sound of War was heard;
 Through the broad empire all men's minds were stir'd;
 As flashed the changeful tidings day by day,
 Hope strove with fear, rejoicing with dismay;
 Then, as in times of old, our School sustained
 Its tax of death, its meed of glory gained.
 Nor only things that touched the public weal,
 But private loss besides, 'twas ours to feel.
 Last year there left us one in whom we knew
 A head and ruler, firm, courageous, true;
 In understanding shrewd, and much renowned
 For learning, varied, wide, and yet profound.
 We miss, moreover, in his wonted place
 The Dean's grave presence and benignant face;
 The kindly Dean who had towards us played
 Almost a father's part. If, then, we stayed
 In mute retreat, who blames us? Playnight jests
 Would but have jarr'd, discordant, in your breasts.
 But these things now are past. Enough of grief—
 In mirth, so long foregone, we find relief,

The time demands it, for the land at length
 Has peace, and broken is the foeman's strength;
 The King, escaped the assault of Death, and still Pale from the strife, but resolute of will,
 Was borne with his fair consort through the crowd,
 Whose myriad welcomes thundered deep and loud,
 And in our grey old Abbey's hallowed shrine
 Assumed the crown of Britain's regal line.
 We, the King's scholars, as of ancient right,
 Stand there in order grouped, enrobed in white,
 To hail the sceptred pair. Long live the King!
 The Queen! in loud acclaim our voices ring.
 Let us, then, pay to Heav'n for favours great
 The thanks we owe, and join to celebrate
 The closing days of this eventful year
 With merry wit and customary cheer.

School Notes.

THE School attended the funeral of the late Dr. Bradley in the Abbey on March 17. The King's Scholars walked in the procession, and during the service sat in the Sacrarium, while the Town Boys were allotted seats in the Nave. The School also sent a wreath.

On Tuesday, March 24, being the tercentenary of the death of Queen Elizabeth, the whole School attended afternoon service in Abbey. For the first lesson, Ecclus. xlv., 'Let us now praise famous men' (R.V.), was read; the anthem, Stainer's 'Lord, Thou art God,' was specially selected for the occasion; and two prayers, one of them the Latin collect in commemoration of School benefactors (with a few suitable alterations), were inserted, and read by the Dean himself, after the collect of the day. Canons Henson and Beeching and all the Minor Canons were present. Bishop Welldon was prevented by illness from attending.

It will be observed from the report of the Games Committee, printed in this number, that a rule is now in force whereby 'only the two head Pinks shall retain their colours from one season to the next.' It is to be hoped that this rule will have a stimulating effect on games by preventing Old Pinks resting on their oars. It leaves the Captain freer, but at the same time brings additional responsibility on his shoulders.

A detachment of the Cadet Corps was inspected by the Adjutant of the Inns of Court Rifles on March 18. The uniforms have now arrived, and contribute greatly to the appearance of the corps, though we do not admire the officers' staff caps.

The Chess Club's Tournament for the Challenge Chess Board has now reached the Semi-Final round. The draws for this round are :—

H. B. Philby v. W. H. F. Waterfield.
E. F. Mosse v. A. C. Bottomley.

E. T. Corfield and F. S. Fleuret have received their 'Pinks.'

The Elizabethan Club have offered a prize for the best photograph of Great College Street, and especially 'Sut's.'

The Ireland Prize for Greek Verse has been awarded to A. L. Crossman.

GAMES COMMITTEE.

A MEETING was held on March 7, Mr. Huckwell being absent. When the minutes had been read, A. T. Coleby's motion, seconded by H. Logan, "that only the two head Pinks shall retain their colours from one season to the next," was, after some discussion, carried unanimously. After a few questions relating to the sports the meeting came to an end.

THE MISSION.

THE Napier Memorial Committee, having received about £2,000, have decided to raise a building which will contain rooms for the use of the Boys' Club. Mr. G. P. Allen has most generously offered his services as honorary architect. This represents a very considerable gift, and we are sure that Mr. Allen's fellow Westminsters will be grateful to him.

The project of a Cadet Corps moves slowly, but it is hoped that it may be carried out soon. The new building will have a hall fit for drilling.

Gifts of old clothing are much desired. They should be sent to the Rev. A. C. Esau, 45 Vincent Square, S.W.

THE FIELDS.

WESTMINSTER v. CAMBRIDGE O.WW.

Played up Fields on Wednesday, February 18, and resulted in a draw of six goals apiece. The ground was in good condition, and there was also a slight cross wind. The visitors won the toss and elected to play towards the Hospital. The O.WW. forwards soon attacked, Blaker and Harris being most prominent in making headway against the School defence. After about ten minutes' play Kennedy got away on the right wing and opened the scoring with a good low cross shot (0-1). From the kick-off the School forwards ran down and equalised from a 'scrum' in the goal-mouth. Almost immediately afterwards Corfield put the School ahead, with a weak shot which ought easily to have been saved. Blaker and Harris again made a good run, which resulted in the former scoring (2-2), Crowe allowing the ball to slip through his hands. Gardner scored again for the School (3-2), and Coleby put in a good shot which Gaye just turned over the bar. Just before half-time Harris equalised for the visitors (3-3). On changing ends, mid-field play followed, until, after about fifteen minutes' play, Blaker again scored (3-4). After the ball had been again kicked off the visitors changed their goal-keeper, and Corfield scored a lucky goal while this change was being effected. Vernon and then Coleby both added goals for the School (6-4). However, Beasley broke away twice, just before time, and equalised for the O.WW. (6-6). There was no further scoring.

The teams were :—

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL.

G. L. Crowe (goal); M. Pemberton, H. Logan (backs); C. Powers, J. M. Craig, F. S. Fleuret (halves); J. C. Vernon, R. G. Gardner, E. T. Corfield, A. T. Coleby, L. G. Kirkpatrick (forwards).

CAMBRIDGE O.WW.

A. S. Gaye (goal), K. B. Anderson, H. R. Lonsdale (backs); M. Clark-Kennedy, A. A. Milne, R. P. Fraser (halves); S. D. Kennedy, S. S. Harris, R. N. R. Blaker, H. O. C. Beasley, P. H. Napier (forwards).

WESTMINSTER v. CHARTERHOUSE.

Played at Godalming on Saturday, February 21, and resulted in a win for Charterhouse by 2 goals to 1. In spite of a high cross wind, which prevailed during almost the whole of the match, a fast game ensued, and the pace was kept up the whole time. Charterhouse did most of the pressing, while the School forwards made frequent rushes into their opponents' half, but were unable to put in many shots. Westminster lost the toss, and Charterhouse elected to defend the Godalming goal, having the wind slightly in their favour. Corfield started the game at 2.45, and from the kick-off Gardner passed out to Vernon, who immediately took the ball down, but failed to centre. Branston put the ball well up the field, whence it was passed out to Seth-Smith; however, Fleuret tackled and relieved before he had made much headway. The opening stages of the game were almost entirely confined to the 'Chapel' side of the field, and great difficulty was experienced in keeping the ball in play. Kirkpatrick, after allowing one or two passes to go into 'touch,' obtained a good opening for a run, but centred before he had made any ground, and Branston was again able to clear up the field. The Charterhouse right wing again made a strong attack, and Seth-Smith put in a good centre, from which, however, Allen shot over. The Charterhouse backs frequently tried long shots, none of which, however, proved dangerous. The School forwards then broke away, but Coleby was soon pulled up by Snell, and Charterhouse again returned to the attack. More good play by the Charterhouse right wing resulted in Strange putting in a good shot, which just went wide. Westminster then took the ball down, and England was called upon to clear. Tetley then broke away on the left wing, but an appeal for offside was allowed. The home team forced two corners in quick succession, both of which were carried just over the bar by the wind. From a throw-in from touch, Craig miskicked into the centre, whence Bence-Pembroke obtained an opening, of which he immediately took advantage, scoring with a fast shot into the corner of the net, quite out of Crowe's reach (0-1). Corfield and Coleby then made some ground, until the latter was again pulled up by Snell before passing. The ball was returned to the School end, and Crowe was called upon to save several shots, chiefly from Allen and Tetley. A few minutes later the former player hit the post, and, the ball rebounding into play, Pemberton cleared. Gardner obtained the ball and passed out well to Vernon; Lee, however, stuck to him and was able to relieve the pressure. The Charterhouse backs still continued to clear well up the field, and the School defence was frequently able to get the ball away before the opposing forwards were in a position to rush. Half-time was called without any further addition to the score.

Ends being changed, Charterhouse kicked off against a somewhat lighter wind, but which was blowing more up the field than before. Allen and Bence-Pembroke started a run, but Craig tackled and cleared. Vernon and Gardner put in some good work on the right wing, being well backed up by Powers. The School forwards still continued to press, and Coleby shot, but the distance was too far to have much effect, and England easily saved. Charterhouse again ran down and Crowe brought off a splendid save, the wind causing the ball almost to curl into the net. Corfield and Coleby then got away and managed to draw the Carthusian right half towards the centre, but Kirkpatrick failed to reach the latter's pass out before it went into touch. Seth-Smith got away and just missed scoring, a unanimous appeal for offside being disallowed. Vernon then ran down and soon centred. Gardner and Corfield were immediately on to the ball, and although Snell and Branston were in a position to tackle before a shot could have been put in with any chance of scoring England left his goal, and from the 'scrum' which followed Corfield scored with an open goal, Snell just failing to reach the ball in time (1-1). Encouraged by this success the School forwards put in some good runs, but failed to get past the Carthusian backs. Vernon received a nasty kick in the head, which caused a brief stoppage of play, but he was soon able to continue.

Snell fed his outside right beautifully, using the wind with great judgment; however, Logan and Fleuret continued to hold their opponents in check and to prevent them from putting in many shots. From a good centre by Tetley, Strange put in a very hot shot at close range, which rebounded off Crowe's legs and Craig cleared. The Westminster left wing then got down and Corfield was given an opening, but an appeal for offside was allowed. The ball was then transferred to the other wing, but Branston managed to clear before Gardner could effectually tackle him; Bence-Pembroke got possession and scored with a low shot, the majority of players expecting the referee to blow his whistle, on account of what proved to be only a momentary injury to Branston. From the kick-off Coleby passed right out to Vernon, who, being unmarked, got well away; but nothing came of his centre. The School continued to press and the left wing got down the line, but Kirkpatrick was ruled offside. Give-and-take play followed for the remainder of the time. Just before the whistle blew Coleby might have got in a shot, but instead he made a poor pass to Powers, and the chance was lost. No further points were added, and the match ended in a victory for the home team by 2 goals to 1.

For Charterhouse, Snell, Bence-Pembroke, and Allen were best; Branston tackled well, but his kicking was erratic. The halves were all good, perhaps the best being Drew. The forwards did not combine very well, and the defence was much better. The same applies to Westminster, for whom Logan, Crowe, Fleuret, and Coleby were best. Craig was good, except for that one fatal mistake which cost Westminster a goal. Pemberton and Powers worked hard, and so did Vernon, but this player would do well to pass oftener. Westminster is to be congratulated on an excellent display, the best she has given this season.

We cannot end without expressing our hearty thanks to Dr. Rendall for his kindness in providing the Westminster spectators with tea, and our cordial appreciation of the Charterhouse team's courtesy and sportsmanship.

The teams were:—

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL.

G. L. Crowe (goal); M. Pemberton, H. Logan (backs); C. Powers, J. M. Craig, F. S. Fleuret (halves); J. C. Vernon, R. G. Gardner, E. T. Corfield, A. T. Coleby, L. G. Kirkpatrick (forwards).

CHARTERHOUSE.

R. D. England (goal); J. E. Snell, G. T. Branston (backs); G. L. Bickersteth, A. A. Drew, C. B. Lee (halves); D. Seth-Smith, J. S. Strange, R. A. Bence-Pembroke, R. A. H. Allen, J. C. Tetley (forwards).

WESTMINSTER v. AN ETON XI.

Played at Vincent Square on Saturday, March 7, and resulted in a disastrous defeat for the School by 5 goals to 1. The School were without the services of Corfield and Kirkpatrick, but this is no excuse for the poor display that was given, especially in the second half. Owing to heavy rain during the morning the ground was very slippery and the game suffered in consequence. Coleby won the toss and elected to play towards the Hospital end. The School was the first to press and Powers shot behind. During the first few minutes the ball was quickly transferred from one end to the other, both sides pressing in turn. Coleby and Woodbridge then made a good run, but the latter got too far ahead and offside was allowed. From a centre by Vernon, Woodbridge put in a good shot, which Scholfield succeeded in fisting away. Eton then obtained a corner, which, however, proved fruitless; Eton still attacked and Aspinall missed a very easy chance of scoring. A few minutes later Tufnell opened the scoring for the visitors (0-1). Crowe cleared well from a 'scrum' in front of goal. The School forced a corner, but Powers again shot behind. A free kick for a foul throw was awarded against Powers, but nothing came of it. From a good centre by Sheepshanks, Powers unfortunately put the ball through his own goal (0-2). Coleby and Woodbridge again ran down and Coleby hit the post; the ball rebounded into play, but Woodbridge just failed to reach it to put it through. There was no alteration in the score before half-time. From the kick-off Coleby and Woodbridge almost got straight through, but Bankes cleared just in time. The School still continued to press, and Coleby scored from a good centre by Woodbridge (1-2).

From this point the game went almost continually in favour of Eton. After some mid-field play, Aspinall ran through and scored (1-3), while Sheepshanks added another soon afterwards (1-4). The School then ran down, and Woodbridge obtained an opening, but shot wide. A few minutes before time Smith scored another goal for Eton (1-5). Even play followed for the remainder of the game. For the School, Powers, Logan, and Fleuret all worked hard, but did not receive much support from the forwards in defending our goal. For the visitors, Hughes, Birchenough, and Aspinall were best.

The teams were :—

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL.

G. L. Crowe (goal); M. Pemberton, H. Logan (backs); C. Powers, J. M. Craig, F. S. Fleuret (halves); J. C. Vernon, L. A. Woodbridge, A. T. Coleby, R. G. Gardner, H. B. Philby (forwards).

AN ETON XI.

R. B. Scholfield (goal); J. Hughes, J. Bankes (backs); R. Birchenough, H. Mackintosh, C. Lacon (halves); A. C. Sheepshanks, C. Tufnell, G. Aspinall, M. Smith, H. Wormald (forwards).

WESTMINSTER v. OLD WESTMINSTERS.

Played up Fields on Wednesday, March 11, and resulted in a draw of two goals apiece. Foster won the toss, and Corfield kicked off at 2.55, the School playing towards the Church end. The School were the first to press, and were unlucky in not scoring almost immediately. Give-and-take play followed, until the Old Westminsters broke away, but Harrison shot behind with an open goal in front of him. The School then ran down, and Woodbridge just shot over, while a few minutes later Knight just managed to reach a good shot by Coleby. The visitors' right wing was afforded plenty of opportunities of getting away, but they were well marked by Fleuret, and did not make much ground. From a good centre by Vernon, Coleby scored (1-0). However, after a long piece of combination between Winckworth and Campbell, near to the corner flag, the ball was at last centred, and Blaker equalised (1-1). On changing ends, the School forwards ran down and Coleby just missed with a ground shot. The play was transferred to the other end, but the School obtained an offside kick against Barnett. The same player was frequently offside during the match. Harrison hit the post, and some of the players thought the ball went over the line, but the decision was given in the School's favour. Barnett put the visitors ahead from a centre by Campbell (1-2). Straight from the kick-off Coleby passed out to Vernon, who took the ball down the wing, and centred to Woodbridge, who managed to score (2-2). Both sides continued to press equally, but there was no further scoring. For the School the halves were best, especially Fleuret, while Capon played well in goal. For the visitors the defence was better than the forwards, whose shooting was poor.

The teams were :—

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL.

H. V. Capon (goal); M. Pemberton, H. Logan (backs); C. Powers, J. M. Craig, F. S. Fleuret (halves); J. C. Vernon, L. A. Woodbridge, E. T. Corfield, A. T. Coleby, R. G. Gardner (forwards).

OLD WESTMINSTERS.

C. B. H. Knight (goal); A. Whittow, G. Schwann (backs); H. O. C. Beasley, A. L. Foster, A. C. Nesbitt (halves); R. R. Campbell, D. P. Winckworth, F. I. Harrison, R. N. R. Blaker, R. O. Barnett (forwards).

WESTMINSTER v. OLD ETONIANS.

Played up Fields on Saturday, March 14, and resulted, after a good game, in a win for the visitors by 3 goals to 2. The Old Etonians won the toss, and defended the Hospital goal. The School were the first to press, and Woodbridge almost scored, the ball just dropping over the bar. The visitors then attacked, and Gosling put in a hard shot at close range, which rebounded off Crowe's legs. The School then forced a corner, which, however, was put behind. Good combination by the insides gave Corfield an easy opening; but he shot high over the bar. The School continued to have the better of the game, but failed to score, both from poor shooting and from not putting enough shots. Just after half-time a heavy shower came on, which lasted long enough to make the ground very slippery. The School were the first to score through Coleby. However, the Old Etonians soon equalised through T. S. Gosling. The same player, with a good dribble, succeeded in scoring again a few minutes later. The School again pressed, and Corfield almost rushed a centre of Vernon's through the goal. The visitors further increased their lead (1-3). Westminster scored again from a penalty, but were unable to equalise. For the School, who were crippled by the absence of the regular halves, the defence worked hard, while the forwards showed much better combination than usual, but were still very weak in front of goal. For the visitors, T. S. Gosling and Bircham played well.

The teams were :—

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL.

G. L. Crowe (goal); M. Pemberton, J. K. Hepburn (backs); F. W. Hubback, J. R. Trench, R. P. Mears (halves); J. C. Vernon, L. A. Woodbridge, E. T. Corfield, A. T. Coleby, R. G. Gardner (forwards).

OLD ETONIANS.

H. Shepperd (goal); H. Onslow, B. O. Bircham (backs); M. L. Darling, N. Malcolmson, A. R. Rouse (halves); J. C. Tabor, R. G. Ellis, T. S. Gosling, L. D. Gosling, R. C. Firth (forwards).

WESTMINSTER v. L. A. M. FEVEZ, Esq.'s, XI.

Played up Fields on Wednesday, March 18, and resulted in a win for the visitors by 4 goals to 3. Westminster kicked off from the Hospital end and were the first to press. After about ten minutes' play, Woodbridge scored for the School, with a good shot in the corner of the net (1-0). This was followed soon afterwards by another from Coleby (2-0). The visitors then broke away and Harris scored. From a centre by Whittow, which Logan did not attempt to clear, Nesbitt ran in and equalised (2-2). Just before half-time Whittow scored (2-3). For the first twenty minutes the visitors had matters all their own way, Severn, Moon, and Harris keeping the School defence fully occupied. From a pass forward by Moon, Harris got through and further increased their lead (2-4). The School forwards again got together, and Gardner made several runs on the left wing, from which he put in some good centres, but nothing came of them; Coleby and Woodbridge put in some weak shots, which Fevez easily cleared. From a pass by Corfield, Coleby scored, the ball hitting the post and rebounding into the net (3-4). The School were, however, unable to equalise. For the School, Pemberton and Corfield were good, while Malcolm made a promising first appearance; for the visitors, Harris and Severn were very good.

The teams were :—

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL.

G. L. Crowe (goal); M. Pemberton, H. Logan (backs); F. W. Hubback, J. R. Trench, A. R. Malcolm (halves); J. C. Vernon, L. A. Woodbridge, E. T. Corfield, A. T. Coleby, R. G. Gardner (forwards).

L. A. M. FEVEZ, Esq.'s, XI.

L. A. M. Fevez (goal); A. Whittow, A. T. Willett (backs); C. M. Page, S. C. Probyn, A. L. Foster (halves); A. C. Nesbitt, S. S. Harris, L. J. Moon, A. R. Severn, R. S. Summerhayes (forwards).

HOUSE MATCHES.

FIRST ROUND.

RIGAUD'S v. ASHBURNHAM.

This match was played in a hurricane of wind which blew straight down the ground. Rigaud's won the toss and decided to play against the wind. After some even play, Ashburnham forced a corner, and Geddes obtained a goal with a good shot. Nothing further was scored before half-time. On changing ends Rigaud's had things all their own way, but wild shooting prevented their scoring. However, fifteen minutes before time they obtained 3 goals in quick succession, and, in spite of a determined attack by Ashburnham, won by 3 goals to 1. For Rigaud's Matcham was good, while the losing team collectively made a plucky fight, Johnson and Davidson being conspicuous.

The teams were :—

RIGAUD'S.

H. V. Capon (goal); C. Powers, J. K. Hepburn (backs); A. W. Matcham, J. M. Craig, F. S. Fleuret (halves); H. Walker, T. Rodocanachi, F. C. Failes, S. McKenna, C. J. G. Seddon (forwards).

ASHBURNHAM.

A. H. Aglionby (goal); J. C. C. Davidson, E. S. Wallis (backs); L. R. Walton, R. P. Mears, A. R. Malcolm (halves); W. B. Harris, S. F. Johnson, R. W. Geddes, G. B. Blizard, K. N. Colvile (forwards).

GRANT'S v. H.BB.

This match was played on Wednesday, March 4. Grant's won the toss, and Davies kicked off for H.BB. During the first half Grant's pressed almost continually and scored 6 goals in all. After half-time the H.B. forwards made a slight attack, Davey being conspicuous on the left, but the game still went all in favour of Grant's, and, in spite of Vernon's excellent play at back, 3 more goals were added. Grant's thus won a very one-sided game by 9 goals to none. For Grant's, Kirkpatrick and Houdret were best; for H.BB. Vernon played a splendid game at back, but, owing to Corfield's unfortunate absence, had no one to back him up.

The teams were :—

GRANT'S.

H. C. G. Pedler (goal); H. Logan, M. Pemberton (backs); M. C. Houdret, J. S. Lewis, G. Castle-Smith (halves); J. L. Johnston, L. A. Woodbridge, L. G. Kirkpatrick, K. E. Newman, R. W. Reed (forwards).

H.BB.

R. C. Oppenheimer (goal); J. C. Vernon, C. F. Holland (backs); G. W. Murray, J. E. Thoresby-Jones, G. B. Sankey (halves); R. P. Philipson, N. S. Castle, P. T. Davies, C. H. Vincent, A. P. D. Davey (forwards).

FINAL ROUND.

GRANT'S v. RIGAUD'S.

Played on Thursday, March 12. Grant's having won the toss, Failes kicked off for Rigaud's. In the first half Grant's had far the best of the game, though Rigaud's sometimes broke away; that no goals were scored before half-time was chiefly due to the erratic shooting of the Grantite forwards. After half time Grant's again pressed, but Capon saved; soon after, however, Johnston opened the scoring with a lucky shot. This was soon followed by another goal shot by Newman. This proved the extent of the scoring, and Grant's thus won by 2 goals to none after a good game. For Grant's everybody played well; Lewis, Logan, and Pemberton appeared to best advantage. For Rigaud's Powers played a good game, and Fleuret and Craig were also good.

The teams were :—

GRANT'S.

H. C. G. Pedler (goal); H. Logan, M. Pemberton (backs); H. V. Argyle, J. S. Lewis, G. Castle-Smith (halves); R. W. Reed, L. A. Woodbridge, J. L. Johnston, K. E. Newman, M. C. Houdret (forwards).

RIGAUD'S.

H. V. Capon (goal); C. Powers, J. K. Hepburn (backs); A. W. Matcham, J. M. Craig, F. S. Fleuret (halves); H. Walker, T. Rodocanachi, F. C. Failes, S. McKenna, C. J. G. Seddon (forwards).

DEBATING SOCIETY.

THE House met on Thursday, February 26, when the following motion was discussed: 'That in the opinion of this House the new Education Act is calculated to promote the true interests of education.'

The PROPOSER (F. H. Nichols) opened his speech by pointing out the various disadvantages which education suffered under the present system of divided and conflicting authority. The Bill introduced by the present Government would remedy these disadvantages. He then gave the House the substance of the Bill, which is to bring all elementary education under one authority, that of the District Council. This Council is to form a Committee of its own members, together with any people in the district, interested in education, whom it chooses to elect. It will then take over the secular management of the Board Schools and possibly the Voluntary Schools, leaving the religious side of education to the school Managers. This would be fair to all parties, as, while the district determined the general management of the schools, the religious question would be left to local decision in each particular case.

The OPPOSER (C. Powers) made a violent attack on the Bill. He realised that education had been in a bad state, but failed to see why it should be allowed to get into a worse one. That this would be the case under the new Act he sought to show by the following arguments: (1) education would now become a party question owing to the religious clause; (2) the object of the Bill was to give all the control of the religious side of education into the hands of the Church of England, which was unfair to Non-conformists. He declared that it was the policy of the Tory Government to keep the lower classes in ignorance, and that this was the way that they sought to do so.

The SECONDER (W. J. Bonser) attacked the old system of Boards of Education on the score of expense as well as on that of injustice. The new system seemed to him eminently fair to all parties, and would certainly be less expensive. Under this system too the transition from one grade of education to another would become much easier. It was absurd to say that the religious control would belong entirely to the Church, for it would belong to the Managers, who would not all be Churchmen by any means. It was only the most bigoted Dissenters who found it worth while to oppose the Bill.

The OPPOSER then rose again to reiterate his former arguments and to draw a gloomy picture of the future of education when everything would be in the hands of the Church.

D. S. ROBERTSON next spoke. He pointed out the absurdity of the idea that each sect should have a school of its own, for there were several sects, such as the Muggletonians, the followers of Joanna Southcott, and others, who were certainly not numerous enough to support their own schools.

After the Proposer and Opposer had again spoken, A. C. BOTTOMLEY rose to address the House. He defended the opposition of the Dissenters to the Bill. He did not see why Dissenters should have to pay rates to keep up Church schools of which they disapproved, while, owing to the fact that they were not a numerous enough body to get schools of their own religious convictions, they would be unable to get any help towards their own religious education.

After various members of the House had spoken, K. N. COLVILLE rose to point out that the Dissenters opposed the Bill for the mere love of opposition. They had really no serious difference with the Church on matters of religion. The Roman Catholics willingly accept the Bill; why, then, should not the Dissenters? The English Church as the Established Church was entitled to State aid. He considered that the Church and the nation should be the same thing, a state of things which would obviate all difficulties of education.

The motion was then carried by acclamation.

The House met on Thursday, March 5, when the following motion was discussed: 'That this House would welcome some measures restricting the Immigration of Aliens.'

The PROPOSER (J. C. Vernon) said that in the present state of things England was a common refuge for the world's malefactors. This is shown by the fact that twenty-five per cent. of our criminals are aliens. Not only do the poor class of aliens introduce crime into the country, but by their cheap and filthy manner of living they are able to undersell and put out of work the Englishman of their own class. The influx of aliens is on the increase, and the question should therefore be seriously considered.

The OPPOSER (E. W. Lane-Clayton) pointed out that aliens are very useful to us in matters of trade; owing to the cheapness of their labour, they make articles which they manufacture much cheaper all over the country. He denied that they were so dirty as a class as the Proposer had said; their sanitary conditions were bad, but not worse than those of Englishmen of their class, and they were much more sober and thrifty as a class than Englishmen.

The SECONDER (F. C. Failes) denied the usefulness of aliens in trade to England; the quality of their work was poor, which accounted for its cheapness.

G. D. JOHNSTON thought that aliens, on the whole, worked as well as Englishmen, and that it was not fair to introduce any law of restriction based on wealth.

J. S. LEWIS showed that poor aliens did no good to the country, for they only came to work here for cheap wages to learn their trade, and by the time their work became good they returned to their own countries, leaving us their bad work.

After remarks by H. B. PHILBY, E. A. BELL, and

C. POWERS, mostly referring to the efficiency or non-efficiency of the British workman,

The PRESIDENT rose to speak. He admitted that the question was a difficult one. The tradition of England was in favour of free immigration. On the other hand, the poor aliens might be a source of danger by underselling and disease. However, poor aliens in past times, such as the Huguenots, had conferred great benefits on England by the infusion of new blood. This might be again. Meanwhile it is owing to our free institutions, which are England's glory, that free immigration is allowed, and until there seems to be real danger from the system it is as well to abide by our traditions.

After remarks by G. D. JOHNSTON and K. N. COLVILLE, dealing with the sanitary side of the question, the motion was lost by acclamation.

House Notes.

COLLEGE.—We have not much news to chronicle this month. We were disappointed by the weather of a friendly game in which Upper Elections were to meet Grant's. By the time these notes appear the Town Boy match will be a matter of history; may Jupiter Pluvius be more gracious to us than of late years! Our prospects for the sports are only fair; our tug team practises assiduously every evening. We offer our heartiest congratulations to Tizard on his Demyship at Magdalen College, Oxford. The Literary Society has read 'As You Like It' and 'King Lear.' The Chess Club seems to have looked up again after about a month of hibernation; the Fives Ties remain where they were when last we wrote.

GRANT'S.—First we must heartily congratulate our team on again winning the shield. In the first round we beat Home Boarders by (9-0). In the final round we beat Rigaud's by (2-0) after an evenly contested game. We congratulate K. E. Newman, J. S. Lewis, M. C. Houdret, and G. Castle-Smith on receiving their house colours. The Literary Society has read 'Richard II.' and Sheridan's 'Critic.' D. S. Robertson has come as a boarder till the end of the Term in view of his being Head of the House next Term. We also congratulate F. Worlock on winning the pancake, this being the fourth time in the last six years that a Grantite has obtained it.

RIGAUD'S.—First and foremost we offer our congratulations to F. S. Fleuret on his pinks, to H. V. Capon on his thirds, and to A. W. Matcham on his house colours. In the first round of Seniors we beat Asburnham (3-1), but in the Finals we succumbed to Grant's (0-2) after a very good game, in which, we regret to say, Fleuret sprained his ankle rather badly; we wish him a speedy recovery before the Sports. We wish Powers every success in his exam. at Cambridge; during his absence D. Clark has again taken up monitorial duties. Yard ties have now reached the final round, in which Powers and Fleuret are left in. We think Rigaud's will be well represented in camp at Easter.

H.BB.—Having drawn Grant's in the first round of the Shield matches we were defeated (0-9). Our team was somewhat handicapped by the absence of Corfield, but our opponents were vastly superior and thoroughly deserve their victory. Vernon was, of course, the mainstay of the team; Davey worked hard forward, but did not get many chances; Oppenheimer, Sankey, Vincent, Thoresby-Jones, and Holland all played up well. After the match Oppenheimer received his house colours, upon which we heartily congratulate him. Having challenged Ashburnham, we were again defeated (1-7), Castle shooting our only goal. Although now almost a matter of history, we must record our most hearty congratulations to Corfield on his 'pinks,' and regret that he was prevented from playing at a time when his services were so much needed. House Fives Ties have now reached the final stage, where Corfield and Thoresby-Jones will meet Bartlett and Johnston; but by the time that this appears in print all uncertainty as to the issue will, we hope, have been decided.

ASHBURNHAM.—The house matches have been the chief topic of interest this month. We had a very good game with Rigaud's, but were unfortunately defeated (1-3). We also played H.BB. in a friendly, winning fairly easily (7-1). Congratulations to Johnson and Harris on their house colours, and to Malcolm on playing for the School v. L. A. M. Fevez's XI. Mears is undergoing examination at Cambridge; we wish him success. Saunders is at Oxford, and we rely on him to gain another play for the School. We also congratulate Crossman on winning the Ireland Prize for Greek Iambics. Our prospects for the sports are good, and we hope to retain the Cup. We are glad to see that S. S. Harris has been elected captain of the C.U.A.F.C. May Cambridge gain as much from his captaincy as Ashburnham did!

Old Westminster.

THE Hon. and Rev. S. G. W. Maitland has been presented by the Bishop of Lichfield to the Perpetual Curacy of Palfrey, near Walsall, a newly-formed parish with a population of 8,000.

Mr. G. P. Allen is preparing a design for the new parish rooms of St. Mary's, Westminster. He gives his services as a contribution to the School Mission.

The King has sanctioned the appointment of Mr. N. G. B. Lechmere, Second Lieutenant in the Scots Guards, to be an Esquire of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

Longmans publish 'God and the Individual,' by the Dean of Christ Church.

The Rev. Arthur Kitchin, who has been for some time acting as Archdeacon of Calcutta, is now appointed to that Archdeaconry.

Sir Clements Markham gave an address at the Royal Geographical Society's Commemoration of Queen Elizabeth on the tercentenary of her death. He made special reference to the Westminsters, Richard Hakluyt and Edward Gunter. By his desire the School lent for exhibition the Black Jacks, from one of which Hakluyt drank buttered beer in the year 1564.

Mr. Guy Laking, M.V.O., has published a Catalogue of the Armoury of the Knights of St. John at Valetta. As an authority on armour Mr. Laking has no superior.

Mr. K. H. A. Kellie and Mr. J. D. H. Freshwater are admitted Members of the Royal College of Surgeons. Both are graduates of Cambridge.

Mr. S. S. Harris is elected Captain of the Cambridge U.A.F.C. for next season.

At Trinity College, Cambridge, Mr. B. G. Brown is elected to a Major Scholarship for History, and Mr W. T. Kennedy to a Major Scholarship for Classics.

Professor E. V. Arnold is become a life subscriber to The Elizabethan.

At the last examination Mr. W. E. Perry passed into the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich.

Marriage.

ON March 14 Captain the Earl of Cardigan, D.S.O., only son of the Marquis of Ailesbury, to Sydney, daughter of the late John Madden and Lady Caroline Madden.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of 'The Elizabethan.'

ST. PETER'S COLLEGE, WESTMINSTER.

DEAR SIR,—May I call attention to the lack of pieces in the Chess Room at the present time? There are no "White Knights" and only one "Black Knight." Their places have to be taken by a Rook turned upside down, which involves great inconvenience.

Hoping that some steps can be taken to remedy this.

I am,
Yours, &c.,
C. W.

To the Editor of 'The Elizabethan.'

SIR,—Last year a correspondent wrote suggesting that 'a double page might be provided in the Sports Programme for keeping count of the points scored towards the House Challenge Cup.' An Editorial footnote was appended saying that the Secretary of the Games Committee had decided to adopt your correspondent's suggestion. Yet no such double page appeared in the programme. May I ask if any of your readers know of any objections that were raised to this proposal? If so, will they make such objections public? If not, why did the then Secretary of the Games Committee not keep his promise? And, finally, if there is no objection, will the present Secretary see to the printing of this double page in the programme?

Yours,
INDIGNANT.

[In case the Sports Programmes are not in the hands of our readers by the time this number appears, we beg to inform our correspondent that the Secretary of the Games Committee had already decided to act on his suggestion, and that he met with no opposition from any quarter.—ED.]
