THE FOOTBALL SEASON,

1909-1910.

Matches played.	Won.	Lost.	Drawn.	Goals.
				For.	Against.

THE above record of matches played by the 1st XI. is by no means a bad one when the character of the sides opposed to us is taken into consideration, but it would be idle to pretend that the season has not brought its disappointments, and the thick-and-thin supporters of the Saturday matches Up-fields, though sometimes cheered by narrow victories, have frequently returned down-hearted and thoughtful from their visits to the Square. And another glance at the figures will reveal the cause of this despondency. They are rather curious figures, and speak for themselves; and it is not the remarkable equality of them that is most striking, for this is no drawback, inasmuch as it tells of closely fought contests, which are the essence of good sport, but the fact that neither for nor against did the number of goals scored average two per match. Here we have food for reflection; for this year we have undoubtedly been represented by a better defence than most of us can remember, and it has been lack of scoring power among the forwards that has again and again neutralised the sterling work of this department. The Charterhouse match, which is too fresh in our minds to need any comment here, was but an epitome of the whole season's work. It is not easy to suggest how this defect can be remedied, especially with our limited means of practice, but it would be as well for those who do practise shooting in 'green' and elsewhere to remember that in a match the ball has nearly always to be kicked on the run by the player shooting at goal, and that if the ball is trapped first the shot must follow immediately, as no full back is likely to give a forward time to steady the ball and take a run at it. All shooting practice which ignores this obvious fact is practically useless. In the various matches the best performances probably were the victories over Old Brightonians, Old Etonians, Old Wykehamists, and Old Felstedians, while the heaviest defeats were inflicted by Emeriti and S. S. Harris' XI., but the latter were a very powerful combination, and the School were handicapped by the absence of Formilli.

It was rather a disappointment to be severely beaten by Winchester, but the strangeness of the ground undoubtedly upset the side, and we have a victory over Eton to set against it. Moreover, for the first time for many years we avoided defeat from our Carthusian rivals; indeed, until the last ten minutes, we seemed to have the game well won, but so strongly did Charterhouse finish, that an unbiassed judge would probably have been unable to come to any other decision than a draw, if the match had been decided on points instead of on goals, the only things that count.

Individually, as well as collectively, the defence was superior to the attack. Rawson is a much safer goal-keeper than we have had for some years, seldom making a mistake and frequently bringing off brilliant saves: his kicking is also good. Formilli was the best player on the side. He knows how to use his pace and weight to the best advantage and is a quick and resolute tackler. Hammond, his partner, was not so consistent, but at his best is very little inferior, as he is a good kick and has a capital knowledge of the game. Clarke feeds his forwards well and knows the game, but is a trifle lacking in pace when opposed to a speedy outside. At centre half Graham proved somewhat of a disappointment, for although excellent in defence, he never seemed to grasp the necessity of following up his forwards, and it was in attack rather than in defence that we felt the loss of Gow, for the forwards were seldom given possession of the ball again once they had lost it, and this no doubt partly accounts for the scarcity of goals. Lutyens is fast and plucky, but rather clumsy. The forwards were clever enough in mid-field but ineffective at the critical moment. Cooke hardly made the improvement expected, but Marriott came on a lot in the middle of the season and played many excellent games. Goodall is too dilatory in his methods. Feasey always played keenly and ran well, without being very clever with the ball, and also performed well at full-back on occasions, while Young made enormous improvement and at the end of the season was quite the best forward on the side, running with plenty of dash and centreing accurately. Rawson, Miles and Edgar also made occasional satisfactory appearances.

With every member of the team leaving except Cooke, it cannot be said that the prospects for next season are particularly bright, but the form in Juniors appeared much above the average, and it may be that in a few years time we shall be represented by quite a powerful side. Rudd, Pink, Potter, Cardew, Robinson and the Ashburnham quintette of forwards are all players of very distinct promise, and it is to be hoped that they will not only rival their predecessors in keenness, but manage to acquire the art of placing the ball into the net. It is only goals that count.

School Notes.

THERE was an exeat from noon on Thursday, March 24, till 9.30 A.M. on the following Tuesday morning.

The Confirmation this year was held on Saturday, March 19. It was again conducted by Bishop Welldon.

P. S. Ham has been elected to a Natural Science Scholarship at Downing College, Cambridge.

The Waterfield Prize for Latin Prose has been awarded to E. W. Williamson.

The Ireland Prize for Greek Iambics has been divided between K. D. Murray and E. W. Williamson.

The Sports this year take place on Friday and Saturday, April 1 and 2.

The Inter-House Drill Competition has been won by Grant's.

In the first round of Seniors, Grant's beat Rigaud's (3-0), and Home Boarders beat Ashburnham (1-0).

In the first round of the Inter-House Racquets competition Home Boarders succumbed to Rigaud's (1-4), while College defeated Ashburnham by a similar margin.

After the Charterhouse match Pinks were awarded to W. E. Young, J. F. Goodall and W. F. Lutyens.

We much regret that our account of the Winchester match is unavoidably held over till next month.

The teams have been made up as follows:—

Historical Notes.

WE reprint the following from the 'Observer' of March 13:—

'The escapade of Mr. Philander Knox, who ran away from school in order to marry Miss May Boler, has a parallel in the history of Westminster School two generations back. The story is thus told by Prebendary Meyrick, who was related to the hero of the occasion:—

"Meyrick and another, being among the head boys of Westminster School, contrived to scrape acquaintance with two girls in the neighbourhood who were treated at home with severity. After a time it occurred to them that it would be a happy adventure to be married. The preliminaries of marriage were not at that time so difficult to get over as at present, and on an appointed day the two boys and girls met at a church in the Fleet. But up to this time they had not quite determined which boy should marry which girl.

"Both the boys preferred Lady Lucy Pitt, and there was almost a fight in the porch on the subject. Meyrick being the stronger of the two, the other boy yielded, and satisfied himself with the cousin of Lady Lucy. Meyrick was married to Lady Lucy Pitt, and they went across the Channel to France, whence Meyrick wrote to his father a letter asking his pardon, and saying that until he heard he was forgiven they would stay abroad."

OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS.

IN consequence of the alterations in the (War Office) Regulations for the Officers' Training Corps, it was decided, during last term, to change the uniform of the School Contingent to (khaki) Drab Service Dress, as worn by the Regular Army. This change has now been completed. Many of the old uniforms have been dyed; and the old Field Service cap has been replaced by the regulation Staff cap. A further alteration has been made: in the past some Cadets had great coats, while others had capes. Now every cadet has a great coat.

The work of re-clothing the Corps has occupied a considerable time, and the first parade in the new uniform took place on Thursday, March 17, previous to Field Operations at Aldershot.

Four years ago the whole Contingent was armed with carbines. About that time some rifles were obtained in exchange for carbines. The number of rifles has been increased just recently, and there are now seventy-five rifles and forty-eight carbines available for use. A grant of six new short rifles (as used in the Regular Army) has been obtained for use in the instruction of Cadets. Various additions have been made to the Stand of Arms, which is now complete in every respect.

As was mentioned in the last number of THE ELIZABETHAN, the numbers of the Corps have increased considerably during the last year. There are now 123 Cadets enrolled in the Contingent, and there is every prospect of a further increase next term.

The unsettled state of the weather has made Field Operations an impossibility, but on several occasions the Corps has practised skirmishing in Vincent Square. The opportunities for such work are limited, but it is hoped that a reasonable degree of efficiency in Field Work will be attained. The Close Order Drill is almost as good as it was at the last inspection. A gratifying feature of the present year is the keenness which Cadets have shown for shooting. This keenness has led to considerable improvement.

On Thursday, March 17, the Corps took part in Field Operations on the Fox Hills at Aldershot. The scheme of operations supposed that England (White) had been invaded by a large force of the enemy (Brown). This force had its headquarters at Reading, and its line of communication stretched through Yateley, Pirbright and Guildford, and thence by rail to Dover. A (White) Territorial Column was operating from Alton against the Brown line of communications, and on March 17 had to intercept a convoy of ammunition, which was travelling from Guildford to Yateley. This convoy was escorted by the Eton and Harrow Contingents O.T.C. The attacking (White) Force was composed of Winchester, Lancing and Westminster. Each side had the assistance of Regular Cavalry and Artillery.

The Advanced Guard of the White force was furnished by Lancing, while Westminster marched at the head of the main body, and furnished flank guards.

When the advanced guard was checked by the Brown force, Westminster deployed on the right and attempted to drive in the enemy's left flank. In this they were partially successful; but the strength of the enemy's position led the officer commanding the Brown force to develop a strong attack with Winchester on the left. In all probability the White force would have failed to intercept the convoy.

The work of the Westminster Contingent was good on the whole. The ground was very rough, and there was many woods to be passed. The sections were kept well in hand by the commanders, and the co-operation between the sections was surprisingly good. Many mistakes were made; but it is hoped that the Corps will profit by this experience and will make fewer mistakes next time.

The contingent consisted of three officers and ninety-one Cadets. The uniforms were well put on in most cases, but one would like to see improvement in several respects. The general impression was that it was a most enjoyable as well as instructive Field Day.

The Corps will camp on Salisbury Plain from July 28 to August 6. It is hoped that at least ninety Cadets will go to camp from Westminster. The lists will not be closed until the middle of next term.

THE FIELDS.

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL v.

CHARTERHOUSE.

(Drawn, 1-1.)

THIS annual match was played Up-fields on Saturday, February 26, and after a very keen contest ended in a draw.

It was a few minutes after 2.45 when Marriott kicked off for Westminster, who were defending the Hospital end. The ball was at once taken down to the Charterhouse goal, but Denison cleared and passed to Norris, who, after a fine run down the wing, put in a good centre, from which Dixon nearly scored. Immediately afterwards the Charterhouse goal had an even narrower escape. From a good run and centre by Feasey, Cooke was able to get in a shot. In clearing this Burdon left his goal undefended for Goodall to try a shot, which hit the right-hand post but failed to go in. Encouraged by this narrow escape the Charterhouse forwards, well fed by Fricker, who throughout played an excellent game, began to press, their right wing making several good runs, only to be checked in turn by Lutyens and Hammond. Towards the end of the first half the School forwards, working well together, kept the defence busy; Young in particular, receiving some good passes from Cooke and Marriott, put in several clever runs. Thus after a most even three-quarters of an hour, the whistle blew for half-time, with the score 0-0.

On resuming, the Charterhouse forwards went down to our goal with a rush, and there were many anxious moments before Hammond, who was playing very well, succeeded in getting the ball right away to Young. The latter centered well, but Marriott shot wide. Shortly afterwards Feasey ran down and put in a good centre from which a fruitless corner was gained. After Clarke had put in a fine long shot, the Charterhouse right wing broke away, and Dixon put in a good shot which Rawson saved well. From another fine shot he was only just able to clear at the expense of a corner. From the kick Young got away, took the ball right down the field, and centred to Marriott who, skilfully trapping the ball, easily beat the goal-keeper. Only a few minutes elapsed before Marriott should have scored again. Charterhouse now pressed hard, and Rawson was kept very busy. Once he was left on his knees after saving a shot, and the ball rebounded to the Charterhouse forwards. One of them put in a hard drive, but Rawson managed to put himself in the way of it, and a fruitless corner was the result. Charterhouse continued to press, and at last, only a few minutes before time, their left wing got away, and from Norris' centre Dixon scored. Both sides after this made frantic efforts to gain the lead, but the whistle blew with the score unaltered (1-1).

For Charterhouse all the defence played well. Of the forwards Norris and Boosey were easily the best wing, Norris, indeed, being one of the cleverest outsides that we have seen at Vincent Square for some time.

Rawson, as usual, was very sound in goal. Hammond, after starting a little uncertainly, settled down to play a really excellent game.

Lutyens' pace in front of him was most useful, and they were generally able to look after the wing opposed to them. Formilli and Clarke had a much cleverer wing to face, and they may be congratulated on coming out of the match with much credit, though towards the end Clarke tired perceptibly. Formilli, though not perhaps so conspicuous as Hammond, played an extremely sound game. Graham in the centre hardly came up to expectations, though he did much good work. He, too, seemed to tire towards the close. Of the forwards Marriott and Young, who have both improved out of all knowledge this term, distinguished themselves greatly. Feasey, too, worked very hard, and made several good runs. Mr. P. R. Harrower refereed. The sides were as follows :—

WESTMINSTER.

H. Rawson; G. C. Formilli, M. Hammond; E. C. K. Clarke, R. A. Graham, W. F. Lutyens; W. E. Young, R. C. Cooke, T. F. C. Marriott, J. F. Goodall, G. G. Feasey.

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL v. L. A. M.
FEVEZ, ESQ.'S XI.

(Lost, 1-2.)

For this match, played on Wednesday, March 2, Formilli, Graham and Lutyens were unavailable, Feasey going back, while Pink made a début which promised well for next year. The visitors were, as usual, a lot of veterans, four being Internationals.

The School defended the Hospital goal, and failed to get going much at first, S. H. Day getting through for the visitors only to fail when very close, Rawson saving coolly. The School forced a corner, which proved fruitless; and S. H. Day got clean away again, only to put over badly, a feat imitated at the other end by Cooke. W. R. Moon then showed his ability in saving and clearing a good high shot, and just before half-time Mugliston scored with a very feeble shot which Rawson did not attempt, as the player was clearly in an offside position, the visitors being thus 1 up at half-time.

The game was even after the restart, Hammond being well in evidence, while Cooke missed badly from two very good positions. S. H. Day then got through for the third time, and easily scored (0-2).

The veterans were by this time flagging, and the School had most of the game, Marriott scoring after a good run by Miles (1-2), while before the end several corners were forced; but no further scoring resulted, and a very pleasant and amusing game thus came to an end.

For the School Hammond and Miles were very good.

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL v. CHRIST CHURCH.

Played Up-fields on Saturday, March 5. Christ Church had reached the final in the Colleges' Cup this year, and the outlook seemed bad for us.

The visitors kicked off from the Hospital end and pressed hotly from the start, the outside left soon scoring from close quarters (0-1). The pressure on our goal was still hot, but at last Young relieved with two good runs, a fruitless corner being forced. Then Clarke made his usual mistake of not marking his wing, but Rawson cleared smartly, and after some mid-field play Young robbed the back and centred to Cooke, who scored nicely (1-1). Hammond mis-kicked badly in front of goal, but the visitors' shot hit the upright, and each side had scored 1 at half-time.

Soon after the restart, the outside right took a long pass, and scored from near the corner flag, Rawson misjudging the ball (1-2). After pressure on our goal, the right wing got down, and Goodall scored before Nott-Bower could recover after a good shot by Marriott (2-2). From this point the School pressed hard, but there was no further scoring.

Young was best for the School, who took some time to wake up. Edgar was the most conspicuous for the visitors.

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL v. AN ETON XI.

(Won, 5-0.)

Played on Agar's Plough, Eton, March 12.

Westminster kicked off with the wind in their favour, and despite the rather small ball, the forwards soon got control and Goodall scored with a nice shot from close quarters. Westminster had then considerably the more of the play, and Young scored after he had run down well. Cooke scored the third from the rebound off a good shot by Feasey, following which the Etonians ran down, but the shooting was weak, and they were repulsed. Goodall then made a very neat and clever run from half-way, and scored with a beautiful low shot from rather long range. The score was 4-0 at half-time.

With the aid of the increased wind Eton pressed for a quarter of an hour at the beginning, but never molested Rawson very much, their shooting being bad. Westminster then got together again, and play was transferred to the Eton half, where Young was conspicuous; but Fowler was very good in goal, and saved many shots, while the wind was against good shooting. Finally Graham scored the fifth and last from a corner, after which the game slowed down, and Westminster won by 5 to 0.

The Westminster forwards had all the game, their combination being very nice, while the shooting was good, Young and Goodall being well above the others. Formilli was best in the defence.

For Eton Fowler was excellent in goal, and Tufnell worked hard at half. Chamberlayne was fast forward, and was responsible for several rushes. Teams:—

ETON XI.

R. St. L. Fowler; E. L. Finlay, W. T. Birchenough; A. L. E. Smith, C. W. Tufnell, W. L. Harvey; C. Pease, T. Chamberlayne, G. R. Colman, Sir G. G. W. Horton, A. Charlesworth.

2ND XI. v. O.WW. 'A.'

(Lost, 0-5.)

Played on March 5. The O.WW. had a very strong team out, and pressed nearly the whole time.

The School kicked off, and the game at first was rather even, despite the physical advantages of the visitors. The School, however, never got very close to the goal, while the O.WW. scored twice before half-time.

In the second half the game became a farce, as the referee, having no whistle, could not control the game. The visitors scored 3 more and won 5-0, while Hume nearly got through for the School.

But for the good goal-keeping of Hallward, the visitors would have scored many more goals.

2ND XI.

B. M. Hallward; E. H. Gray, D. A. McManus; F. W. Pink, R. R. Rawson, J. C. Hobson; R. Monier-Williams, G. B. F. Rudd, H. S. Price, H. N. Hume, W. S. Gray.

O.WW. 'A.'

A. S. Gaye; W. G. Goodale, P. H. Wyatt; Capt. Chatterton, R. O. Barnett, A. E. Rice-Oxley; H. C. Macpherson, S. D. Graham, J. C. Vernon, C. M. L. Circuitt, E. Coleby.

COLTS v. O.WW. 'B.'

(Drawn, 3-3.)

Played on March 12. The visitors had only nine men, and no substitutes could be found, there being no 'Pink' left at School owing to the Eton match.

The Colts had all the game in the opening half, and Pink scored after some time. The visitors retaliated, but Hill was equal to the occasion, and McCulloch scored after a run, on the left, the Colts leading by 2-0 at half-time.

On the restart the Colts did not play well, and Denza scored for the visitors after continued pressure. The visitors then drew level, Denza being successful with a very good shot. The Colts then got better and Monier-Williams ran up and scored, though he really started offside. The visitors eventually equalised from a doubtful position, and a very poor game resulted in a draw.

Hill was very good for the Colts, and Bristow for the visitors.

COLTS.

K. Hill; R. F. Potter, J. M. de Slubicki; J. C. Hobson, D. McManus, C. G. Cardew; R. Monier-Williams, G. P. Pick, H. N. Hume, J. W. H. McCulloch, E. Parker.

O.WW. 'B.'

A. Collins; A. B. Johnson, A. N. Other; H. Fisher, A. C. Estall; G. P. L. Eyre, S. F. Johnson, L. C. Denza, F. W. Bristow.

K.SS. v. T.BB.

(T.BB. won, 5-0.)

Played Up-fields on March 19, resulting—as was of course expected—in a win for Town Boys. As no master was available for referee, Mr. J. C. Gow kindly volunteered. T.BB. won the toss, but chose to play against the wind, which was blowing quite strong at the start. Town Boys took up the attack immediately, but K.SS. defence proved strong, and they were prevented from scoring for a considerable time. At last Goodall passed Faure and put in a fine low shot, which hit the post and rebounded on to Durrant, who had fallen in trying to save, and rebounded again into the net. Immediately after Marriott ran down all on his own and put in a second. A run by K.SS. then followed, and Murray forced a corner which proved fruitless. Cooke scored a third for T.BB., and half-time saw them three goals up. T.BB. kept up their pressure all the second half, but could only score twice. K.SS. got down several times, but were very feeble in front of goal with the exception of Rudd, who put in one nice shot. Partridge missed a sitter with his left foot. Goodall scored the fourth and Clarke the fifth from long range, Durrant just failing to save.

For K.SS. all the defence was good. Rudd and Murray did good work in the forward line, but got very little support from the left wing. The Town Boy backs were very good, but the forwards' shooting was poor. Teams:—

K.SS.

W. B. W. Durrant; M. Hammond, C. A. M. Faure; R. E. D. Cargill, A. C. Edgar, W. F. Lutyens; H. N. Wood, R. S. Partridge, S. F. Waterson, G. B. F. Rudd, K. D. Murray.

T.BB.

H. F. Rawson; G. C. Formilli, G. G. Feasey; R. R. Rawson, R. A. Graham, E. C. K. Clarke; C. V. Miles, J. F. Goodall, T. F. C. Marriott, R. C. Cooke, W. E. Young.

THE DEBATING SOCIETY.

THE Society met on Thursday, February 17, to discuss the motion 'That this House approves of Vivisection.'

The Proposer (F. C. DOHERTY) while supporting vivisection on the ground that abuses were guarded against by law, seemed to think it superfluous to point out its advantages. He inveighed sternly against antivivisectionists and made out a good case, though hardly as strong a one as he might have.

The Opposer (A. C. EDGAR) pointed out that the Proposer seemed to be unable to show any material benefits produced by vivisection, and that the safeguards against abuses were to a large extent imaginary. He made the best of a bad job.

The Seconder (S. A. H. CODD) fluently demonstrated what benefits had been conferred upon mankind by vivisection, and indulged in some rather gruesome detail. F. G. HOBSON, in a few convincing words, showed what great discoveries had been made entirely through vivisection with regard to angina pectoris; whereat A. K. GILMOUR was for once induced to differ from Mr. Hobson by his own love of the lower animals. The SECRETARY pointed out that the question lay entirely between Utilitarianism and Sentimentality, and P. H. MALDEN concluded the debate by repeating a few of the Opposer's remarks. The motion was carried by acclamation.

On February 24 the Society met and discussed the motion 'That in the opinion of this House Tariff Reform is no Solution of the Unemployed Problem.'

F. G. HOBSON (the Proposer) showed considerable intimacy with his subject, and in common with the other speakers a marked increase in fluency as compared with former debates. He failed, perhaps, to enforce and ram home his points as much as was necessary.

The Opposer (H. N. WOOD) did not seem to have much acquaintance with his subject; his attempts to read his speech from a pamphlet being frustrated, he made a few scattered remarks and sat down, leaving J. W. N. Smith to repair the damage he had done.

The Seconder (A. K. GILMOUR) pinned his faith to Labour Exchanges, and asserted that Tariff Reform would increase the already large numbers of those who were on the verge of starvation. J. W. N. SMITH in glowing words described the benefits arising from Tariff Reform, and did not forget to mention unemployment. For some time the debate was continued by the former speakers aided by E. H. GRAY, M. HOLROYD and D. F. JERROLD, who discussed small points arising out of what had been previously said. The motion on being put before the House was lost by acclamation.

Although few speakers took part, the debate on the whole was a decided improvement upon its predecessors.

The Society met again on March 3 to discuss the motion 'That this House deplores the bitter partisanship of modern politics.'

The Proposer (J. W. M. SMITH) was short but eloquent as ever. He deplored the disgusting exhibition of rancour during the recent General Election, censured the system which induced men's parties to conflict with their consciences, and concluded with his usual patriotic peroration.

The Opposer (D. F. JERROLD) was superficially plausible: he affirmed that bias was absolutely indispensable to the politician, that the best governors were not sophisticated philosophers, but energetic men. To which the Proposer replied that energy did not involve mendacity.

The Seconder (J. B. CALKIN) after combating some of the Opposer's statements, followed perforce in the footsteps of the Proposer. P. H. MALDEN repeatedly asserted that it was good that political questions should be thoroughly thrashed out before the country; the PRESIDENT contented himself with attacking the Opposer and his supporters, and the SECRETARY, after dealing with Mr. Malden's remarks, deplored the modern tendency to make party capital out of such a subject as our Naval Policy. After P. H. Malden had repeated himself, the motion was put before the House and carried with but one dissentient voice.

The following is the card of the Debating Society for Lent Term, filled in to date:—

Jan. 27.—Impromptu Debates.

Feb. 3.—'That this House would welcome the introduction of Hockey instead of Football during the Lent Term.' Proposer, E. C. K. Clarke; Seconder, E. H. Gray; Opposer, M. Hammond. (Lost by acclamation.)

Feb. 10.—'That this House would approve of the introduction of the Metric System into this country.' Proposer, P. H. Malden; Seconder, E. A. Meyer; Opposer, W. S. Gray. (Carried by acclamation.)

Feb. 17.—'That this House approves of Vivisection.' Proposer, F. C. Doherty; Seconder, S. Codd; Opposer, A. C. Edgar. (Ayes, 11; Noes, 8.)

Feb. 24.—'That in the opinion of this House Tariff Reform is no solution of the Unemployed Problem.' Proposer, F. G. Hobson; Seconder, A. K. Gilmour; Opposer, H. N. Wood. (Lost by acclamation.)

Mar. 3.—'That this House deplores the bitter partisanship of modern politics.' Proposer, J. W. N. Smith; Seconder, J. B. Calkin; Opposer, D. F. Jerrold. (Carried by acclamation.)

Mar. 10.—'That this House would welcome reform in the Public School Curriculum.' Proposer, K. D. Murray; Seconder, E. W. Williamson; Opposer, E. Scott. (Carried by acclamation.)

Mar. 31.—Impromptu Debates.

NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY.

A MEETING of the above Society was held on February 12, when J. G. Barrington-Ward lectured on 'Extinct Animals.'

There was another meeting on Saturday, February 19, when H. N. Wood read a paper on 'Comets.'

There was another meeting on Saturday, March 5, when F. Beddard, Esq., F.R.S., delivered a lecture on 'Serpents Terrestrial and Marine.'

There was another meeting on Saturday, March 12, when H. M. Hake read a paper on 'Birds of Prey.'

There was another meeting on Saturday, March 19, when H. W. Barber, Esq., read a paper on 'Respiration.'

Detailed accounts of all the papers and lectures will be given in the next ELIZABETHAN.

GLEE SOCIETY.

THE Glee Society again entertained the School and its friends to a concert held up School on Friday, March 11. A considerable and appreciative audience was present and, taken as a whole, the performance was a great success. A large number of last year's members, including Mr. Day, Mr. Reed, E. C. K. Clarke and N. Marzetti were again available, while a new and excellent soloist was found in the person of C. J. Brooks. In the Part Songs the Society showed a distinct improvement on last year. Quite a feature of the evening was the performance of the new Orchestra, who took this opportunity of making their first appearance in public. Very hearty thanks are due to Mr. H. E. Darke for so kindly conducting. The following was the programme of the concert:

House Notes.

K.SS.—Yet once more our first duty is one of congratulation—this time to Mr. J. R. Wade on securing the Abbott Scholarship at Cambridge, and Mr. A. P. Waterfield as President of the Oxford University Chess Club. He was the only man on his side to win his match against Cambridge. Coming nearer home, we see with the greatest pleasure that W. F. Lutyens received his Pinks after the Charterhouse match. Our somewhat severe defeat in the Town Boy match was perhaps disappointing, but hardly surprising. The extra ten minutes caused by the stoppage of the referee's watch was all against our smaller and younger team. After the match K. D. Murray, G. B. F. Rudd and R. E. D. Cargill were given their College Colours, while the first and last-named also received their 'Thirds.' College Caps were awarded to C. A. M. Faure, W. B. W. Durrant, and S. F. Waterson. We congratulate all of them. Our Racquets pair defeated Ashburnham by four games to one, so that they, too, deserve our felicitations. We wish them all success in the final against Rigaud's. We hope, too, that our representatives in the Sports will succeed in keeping the Cup for us.

Fives and Chess Ties progress slowly, but there seems a probability of their being finished by the end of the term. The Literary Society concluded the term's readings with 'The Tempest.' On March 11 many of the members spent a very enjoyable evening in seeing 'The Merchant of Venice' at the Court Theatre.

ASHBURNHAM.—We must begin this month by condoling with our Seniors on losing to H.BB. by the narrow margin of one goal. The game was played on a very slippery ground, and we are convinced that had it been dry we should at least have succeeded in drawing with them. As it was, however, everyone was on top of his form, and the game produced four House Colours, Price, Selby, Pick and Cardew; our heartiest congratulations to all of them. We must also congratulate Rice-Oxley on having played off two Fives ties; however, we do not doubt that they will be finished this term. Our rackets pair were unfortunately beaten by College by four games to one.

GRANT'S.—We must first congratulate the House team on their well-merited victory over Rigaud's (3-0). Both sides were heavily handicapped by the slippery state of the ground and the persistent downpour of rain. The team, however, showed that they could combine well together, and should give a very good account of themselves in the final against Home Boarders. We must also congratulate R. Rawson on being chosen to represent the School at Aldershot in the Light-weight Boxing, in which he unfortunately met with no success. We hope, moreover, shortly to be able to congratulate F. Hobson, C. Miles, Graham and Ruegg on the results of their respective examinations. Fives ties and Yard ties are progressing satisfactorily. The House should do well in the coming Drilling and Gymnastic Competitions. Grant's also stands a very good chance of coming to the fore in the Sports if some talent is forthcoming from the junior portion of the House. The Literary Society has had two very successful readings of 'Macbeth' and Sheridan's 'Critic.'

H.BB.—Heartiest congratulations are due to W. E. Young on gaining his 'Pinks' after the Charterhouse match; also to R. H. Monier-Williams on his House Colours, which were awarded to him after the match against Ashburnham. We are glad to say that we beat Ashburnham (1-0) in the first round of Seniors: the ground was in a shocking state, and we are convinced that had it been dry we should have won by a greater margin. As it was, the whole team played extremely well, and if we play as well in the final we should certainly keep the Shield. Our racquets pair were unfortunately beaten by Rigaud's in the first round of the competition; still, we must not complain, as we have held the Cup ever since the competition was instituted. Our prospects for the Sports are fairly bright, and we wish all success to our representatives.

RIGAUD'S.—This month we must begin by offering our congratulations to Goodall on receiving his 'Pinks' after the Charterhouse match; also to Pink on receiving his 'Thirds,' and to Hill and Cobbold on their House Colours. We were again unfortunate in Seniors, losing to Grant's in the first round by three goals to nothing.

In the Inter-House Racquets Ties we have been more successful, Clarke and Slubicki beating Home Boarders in the first round by four games to one; we thus have to play College in the final, and entertain every hope of carrying off the Cup.

The three Rigaudite representatives in the team have distinguished themselves by shooting more than half the goals scored by the School during the season.

We must congratulate Clarke, as President of the Glee Society, on the very successful concert held by the Society up School on March 11. Of Old Rigaudites we hear very little, in fact, the only news that we have had of them this month is that Mr. N. Walker sailed for Hong-Kong on March 11.

Old Westminsters.

At Cambridge, Mr. J. R. Wade, Scholar of Queens', has been elected to the Abbott (University) Scholarship.

Mr. H. V. Argyle has passed the Final Examination of the Law Society.

Mr. E. S. Wood has been appointed Assistant Naval Store Officer at Plymouth.

Mr. T. S. Oldham has become a life subscriber to the ELIZABETHAN.

Birth.

ON March 8, the wife of Edgar Hackforth, of a son.

Obituary.

WE have to regret the death of CHARLES MYLNE BARKER, one of the founders of the Elizabethan Club. He was admitted in 1856, and was a Q.S. from 1858 to 1862. He became a solicitor and was reputed to have the largest single practice in London. In 1905 he was elected President of the Law Society, on which occasion he came to the School and asked for a Play. He was a man of many interests and a learned Shakespearean. He died on February 17. [See the Times of February 19.]

The premature death of CYRIL JOHN NOBLE PAGE will be much lamented by many of his school-fellows. He was born in 1867, the youngest son of Dr. William Emmanuel Page [Election, 1826] and a grandson of the Head Master of his name, he was at the School from 1881 to 1886, and captain of the Football eleven. He went to Trinity College, Oxford, but, brilliant as he was on the football field, a liability to bodily accidents robbed him of his Blue. He was ordained in 1894, and after twelve years' earnest work as curate of Bicester, was preferred to the Vicarage of Stoneleigh. He died in London on February 28. [See the Guardian of February 11.]

PLAY CASTS.

To the Editor of 'The Elizabethan.'

March 10, 1910.

SIR,—As an Old Westminster who takes an interest in putting on record all things connected with the School, I venture to send you a copy of two extracts which complete the casts of the play for two years, where these are defective in the Lusus Alteri Wesmonasteriensis Part 1.

The first, for the year 1774, was taken, I believe, from the 'Universal Magazine,' and is as follows:—

'December 14 was performed, in the evening, at the Dormitory at Westminster, by the King's Scholars, the Phormio of Terence. The following are the names of the young gentlemen who performed:

'Geta, Mr. Abbott; Demipho, Mr. Trevenonen; Phaedria, Mr. Paddy; Antipho, Mr. Brown; Chremes, Mr. Bisset; Dorio, Mr. Madan; Phormio, Mr. W. Bisset; Davus, Mr. Lambard; Cratinus, Mr. Scriven; Crito, Mr. Markham; Hegio, Mr. D. Bisset.—Women, Nausistrata, Mr. Partington; Sostrata, Mr. Frederick Abbott.

'The theatre was crowded by six o'clock with many of the most respectable personages and literati in the Kingdom, amongst whom were, Duke of Dorset, Marquis Caermarthen, Earl Gower, Earl Northington, Lord George Germaine, Lord Guernsey, Bishop of Norwich, Bishop of Worcester, Bishop of Rochester, Lord Clive, Mr. Welbore Ellis, Mr. Justice Nares, Solicitor-General, Sir Edward Dering, General Burgoyne, Mr. Garrick, Mr. Coleman, and others.'

Of the above cast Demipho, Antipho, Phaedria, Chremes, Davus and Dorio are not given in the Lusus. With one exception all the additional names can be easily identified in the 'Alumni.' Mr. Trevenonen is no doubt John Trevenen, (K.S. 1770). Mr. Paddy is James Paddey (K.S. 1770). Mr. Bissett is Maurice George Bissett (K.S. 1771). Mr. Lambard is Thomas Lambard (K.S. 1771). Mr. Madan is Spencer Madan (K.S. 1771). Mr. Brown may be one of two brothers, Thomas Gunter Browne (K.S. 1771), or William Frederick Browne (K.S. 1772), probably the former, as he was in his last year at School.

The second cutting is from the 'Morning Chronicle' of 3 December, 1795, and is as follows:—

WESTMINSTER THEATRICALS.

Yesterday the young Students of Westminster College presented their Annual Play, the Adelphi of Terence, to a crowded Auditory.

DRAMATIS PERSONAE.

Micio	COMYN	Ctesipho	BAGOT, sen.
Demea	BENT	Sostrata	FRANKLIN
Sannio	ATTERBURY	Canthara	GAHAGAN, jun.
Aeschinus	MOYSEY	Geta	BAGOT, jun.
Syrus	HUME	Hegio	LLOYD
Dromo			GAHAGAN, sen.

Of these only Micio, Demea, and Sostrata appear in the Lusus. Of the others Atterbury is Charles Lewis Atterbury (K.S. 1792), Hume is Peter Bearsley Hume (K.S. 1792), Bagot, sen., Egerton Arden Bagot (K.S. 1792), Gahagan, jun., Henry Gahagan (K.S. 1795), Bagot, jun., Walter Bagot (K.S. 1793), Lloyd, Edward Lloyd (K.S. 1792), and Gahagan, sen., Frederick Gahagan (K.S. 1795). Moysey may be either Abel Moysey (K.S. 1792), or Charles Abel Moysey (K.S. 1794). With apologies for the length of the letter, I remain, Sir, Yours, &c.

J. BEACH WHITMORE.

To the Editor of 'The Elizabethan.'

The Public Schools Club,
13 Albemarle Street, W.
March 15, 1910.

DEAR SIR,—Those of your readers who are interested in the School Mission will be glad to know that the St. Mary's Football Club have come out first in the Junior Division of the Westminster League, thereby becoming possessors of a very fine shield, which will ornament the walls of the Club-room in due course.

I remain, yours truly,
O. W.
